GLORIA BISHOP AFTER QUICK-TIME DIVORCE

Here are Gloria Gould Bishop, her husband and the baby. Money and a child have not served to make her happy. Her ambition seems to be to lose the husband and win a "career."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET IS DULL

New York stock market today, after a further rally, became very dull and so remained to the close. Rails showed the most strength. Pullman rose nearly 5 points on good earnings report. On the New York Curb, Ford of Canada dropped 36 at 470, making a total decline of 105 in two days. On foreign exchange the French franc sold at a record low. In Boston Gillette Razor was heavy, and movements in active issues were mixed.

BIG SNOWSTORM IN VERMONT

St. Albans, Vt., April 16 (A.P.).—All April weather records for northern Vermont were broken today when a northwest blizzard swept this section after two days of near-zero temperatures. This afternoon the snow continued unabated, driven by a fierce wind.

Verdicts of not guilty were returned today in the cases of former Police Lieutenant Thomas J. O'Hara of Revere and Frank Vesce, a Revere storekeeper, tried in Suffolk Superior Court on charges of conspiracy to sell liquor.

Lieutenant O'Hara was also acquitted of taking a bribe. Sealed verdicts, returned by the jury after two hours' deliberation, were opened and read by Judge Sisk when court convened.

The government's case was based chiefly on the testimony of Mrs. Stella Giangoio of Revere, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy and declared that she gave Vesce money to be

GLORIA GOULD BISHOP OFF FOR PARIS DIVORCE

Paris, April 16 (I.N.S.).—Gloria Gould Bishop, after a secret flying trip to New York, is on the high seas, bound for Paris, according to advices received here. Friends say that Mrs. Bishop now plans to institute proceedings for a divorce from Henry A. Bishop, Jr. After arriving in Canada quietly last week, Mrs. Bishop is reported to have made a hurried trip to New York and then to have sailed on the Aquitania for France on Wednesday.

In response to a wireless query sent to the Aquitania Mrs. Bishop sent the International News Service the following reply:

"I went to America primarily in my child's interests.

HERO PENSION BILL MAKING HEADWAY

By BERT FORD.

The committee on rules of the House of Representatives was to act today on the Casey-Thomas-Boston Evening American hero pension bill which provides for payment of salary to the family of every policeman and fireman killed in the line of duty.

Filed in the House late Wednesday the measure was promptly advanced to the rules committee on Thursday. With the session so near an end, every effort is being made to speed up this bill which has made instant and widespread appeal.

Its popularity is due to its benevolent, non-political character and humane motives.

Representative Bernard P. Casey, Democrat of Dorchester, who with Representative John Thomas, Republican, of Gloucester, sponsored the bill at the request of the Boston Evening American, said today:

"I don't see how any public official can possibly oppose such a measure. It would promote police efficiency and insure greater protection of life and property. The duties of a fireman are always hazardous, and with crime rampant the work of policemen is infinitely more perilous than ever.

"It is a well established fact that

STRIKERS HALT N. Y. SHIPPING

New York, April 16 (A.P.)—Sailings of mail and passenger steamers today for Europe, South America, the West Indies and the Bahamas were facing delay as a result of the strike of 5,000 tugboat men, crews of about half the 800 towboats in New York harbor. The men were ordered out suddenly until their demand for ten-hour day and higher wages are granted.

The strike will affect almost all tugs used ordinarily in docking freight and passenger ships, and may affect inland freight shipments.

The French liners Bourdonnais and Savoie were due today. Each requires half a dozen tugboats to be brought alongside their North River piers.

DRYS HIT SALOON EVIL AS N. Y. RENEWS PLEA FOR LIGHT WINE, BEER

Washington, April 16 (A.P.)—High churchmen of many denominations united today in an appeal to Congress to stand by the Volstead Act.

With one voice they informed the Senate Prohibition committee that conditions have improved under the dry law, that any modification would mean the return of saloons dominated by the whiskey interests, and that such evils as have arisen under the present dry regime will disappear once prohibition is given a fair chance under effective enforcement.

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, in which 21 Protestant communions hold membership, opened the drive of the drys while spokesmen for other church bodies, Wayne B. Wheeler

WIRE KILLS DRIVER OF RUNAWAY TRUCK

Snatched from his seat on a run away truck by a steel guy wire in a field off Granite avenue, Milton, Frederick Wilhelmi, 27, of No. 5 Pine street, South End, sustained a fractured spine that caused his death in Milton Hospital today.

Leo Feinberg, 22, of No. 15 Keazer street, who was with Wilhelmi, was taken to the same hospital suffering from a fractured ankle and shock.

The accident, one of the most unusual in local automobile history, occurred in Granite avenue near Thistle street, when Wilhelmi swung sharp to the side of the road to avoid an approaching car driven by Albert Huitgren of East Milton.

Wilhelmi lost control of his heavy machine, which crashed through a fence, and rocketed across a field. The truck shot under a wire extending from the top of a telegraph pole to an anchor post in the field, the wire catching Wilhelmi in the stomach and snatching him from the seat.

Feinberg was thrown from the truck at the same time, both men being picked up by Huitgren, who summoned aid and had them re-

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

THE PEOPLE of the United States, with several million plurality that elected President Harding and then elected President Coolidge, do not want the World Court.

It has been said in this column repeatedly that adherence to the World Court, had it been suggested in 1924 or in 1920, would have been rejected by the voters by a vote as great as that against the League of Nations itself, in those years.

Now, in Illinois, the voters defeat the World Court proposition, and Senator McKinley, by 130,000 votes.

The people are content with United States courts and do not want questions affecting this nation submitted to hostile judges. They do not want to send the judge to sit with ten European judges and be outvoted 10 to 1 by representatives of nations that hate this country and despise it.

IF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE and the rest of the administration were in any doubt about the World Court and the attitude of the people toward it, they know more now than they did a week or two ago.

SENATOR McKINLEY, as he says in his pathetic farewell, had been sent to Congress for twenty years by the people of Illinois. What he doesn't say is, that he consulted a few sentimentalists of his own inclination instead of

CHURCHMEN DEMAND PROHIBITION BE GIVEN "FAIR TRIAL"

WOMEN SAY 'PUT BARB IN LAW'

BEER IS DEMANDED.

As the morning session ended, there was filed for the record a statement against prohibition by twenty members of the House from New York, who have introduced a bill to repeal the Volstead Act.

"The sentiment of our people has been conveyed to us in no unmistakable terms," the statement says. "They demand beer, wine and fermented beverages. To arrest their desires we believe they are willing to abide by the Constitution and forego distilled liquor and ardent spirits.

"Our bill does not violate the Constitution, it follows it. The bill repeals the Volstead Act in its entirety, and, starting out anew, prohibits the unquestionably 'intoxicating liquors' which are distilled liquors or spirits. It leaves each State then free to do as it sees fit in reference to beer, wine and fermented beverages.

"So-called 'dry' States may still remain 'dry' and prohibit. If they see fit, even beer containing any percentage of alcohol, however small.

"The other States may likewise provide and regulate the sale of beer and wine. And all States will be protected by the old Webb-Kenyon law from interstate traffic in any beverage they prohibit."

ASK REASONABLE TRIAL.

In a statement read by Dr. William J. Haven of the American Bible Society the Federal Council denied that prohibition was adopted hastily at the behest of a puritanical minority, declared the evils of the dry era are far less menacing than those of the old wet days and demanded that the Volstead Act be given a reasonable chance to demonstrate its virtues.

One of the lay witnesses called by the Federal Council was Dr. Melvin H. Green, a member of the City Council at Cleveland, Ohio. He declared poverty, drunkenness and suffering had decreased under prohibition, and under cross-examination by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, the wet prosecutor of the committee, insisted that the only amendment to change in the Volstead Act would be an amendment putting more teeth into the statute.

Mr. Green presented figures showing 8,150 prosecutions for drunkenness in Cleveland in 1917, and 7,719 prosecutions for the same offense in 1925.

Senator Reed wanted to know if these figures showed a decrease in drunkenness.

"Yes, sir," she said. "The increased arrests represent more vigilance on the part of the police. In the old days unless a man was disorderly the police turned their backs. Now they have orders to arrest all men under the influence of liquors."

RUM DEATHS JUMP.

Dr. Haven Emerson of Columbia University, presented an official report of the New York City Health Department showing deaths from cirrhosis of the liver were 24.7 per 100,000 in 1900, with a decline to 6.7 per 100,000 in 1925. Another chart from the same source showed a sharp decrease in deaths from Bright's Disease from 1918 to 1921, and a further decrease from 1922 to 1925. Next came a chart on tuberculosis mortality. It showed a sharp drop during 1918 to 1919, and a steady downward trend from 1920 to 1925.

"I don't say that alcohol causes tuberculosis," Dr. Emerson said, but added that improved economic conditions among the people under prohibition had contributed to the decrease.

A chart showing alcoholic deaths at Bellevue Hospital in New York City was placed in the record. It showed 223 yearly from 1910 to 1914; a drop to 56.5 yearly in 1921-1922; and a rise to 350 in 1925.

"The purpose of exhibiting this chart," Dr. Emerson said, "is to show the drop when alcohol was difficult to get and the return to the normal level last year when alcohol again was available in large quantities."

"The lesson we get out of these figures is that you can get booze as easily in New York today as before prohibition," observed Senator Reed.

BRITISH DRINKING DATA.

But Reed cut him off.

"The other is," said the Missourian, "that you can't die from alcohol when you can't get it."

Dr. Emerson presented another chart showing a drop in mortality with the drop in the consumption of liquor in Great Britain during the war.

"You don't mean to say they ever had prohibition in England?" asked Reed.

"No, but there was a sharp curtailment in production and sale because of need of grains for food."

Reed suggested that during the war millions of Englishmen were on the fighting front.

Questioned by Senator Reed, Dr. Emerson said one of the things accompanying prohibition was the reduction in the number of sanitariums for the treatment of alcoholics.

"Has there been an increase of the use of drugs since prohibition?"

"There is no evidence of an increase of the drug habit," replied Dr. Emerson, "on the contrary, there is evidence of a reduction."

The statement of the Federal Council of Churches was read by Dr. William J. Haven of New York, secretary of the American Bible Society.

EVILS OF SALOONS.

"If serious evils have sprung up since prohibition," the statement said, "they are far less than the evils which arose from the liquor traffic prior to the Eighteenth Amendment. The liquor traffic, with the accompanying saloon, was allied with political corruption, crime, gambling and prostitution. It meant the wreckage of men and the degradation of families.

"The policy of prohibition was not adopted hastily nor was it foisted upon the country by a puritanical minority. It was first voted in most of the States separately and then nationally, because the people had become convinced that the liquor traffic was a social evil of such magnitude that it had to be destroyed.

"The Eighteenth Amendment was made a part of the Constitution by the regular methods which the founders of the Republic devised with a view to making the amendment of the Constitution difficult rather than easy. Yet this amendment was adopted more promptly than any other change in the Constitution ever proposed.

SEES BOOTLEG GROWTH.

"The proposal to modify the Volstead Act so as to permit the sale of wines and beer presents insuperable objections. It would make enforcement more difficult. It would inevitably mean the return of 'the' of the saloon or something equally undesirable.

"Bootlegging in stronger liquors would become more menacing because it would tend to operate through places where the milder intoxicants were sold.

"Moreover, there is no evidence to justify the contention that to permit wine and beer would reduce the consumption of ardent spirits. The teaching of experience is to the contrary.

"Methods of control short of prohibition, such as taxation, regulation and the governmentally controlled systems of some of the Canadian provinces, Norway and Sweden, have all proved inadequate to cope with the evil.

"The one path of advance is for all good citizens personally to observe the law and to support the great enterprise, born of the idealism of the people, of completely ridding the Nation of as demoralizing a business as the liquor traffic has always proved itself to be."

"All law is infringement of personal liberty for the sake of public welfare," the statement continued.

"One of the blots upon our national character is due to the utterly misleading conception of personal freedom which rejects control and defies authority. How else can we account for the swollen lists of divorces, robberies, murders, the notorious deeds of public spoliation and financial debauchery; the unlicensed allusions of the press and its exaltation of rogues by the publicity it gives their trial and execution, when they are brought within the reach of tardy justice.

"They say that prohibition was foisted suddenly upon an unwilling people. As a policy, entire legal suppression of the liquor traffic in one form or another, is 70 years old in the United States. During that prolonged period the traffic has given repeated opportunity to reform.

Dr. John E. Walsh, mayor of Revere, testified at the trial that Vesce admitted to him and two other Revere men, at an inquiry, that he paid O'Hara money in the form of a check which he had previously received from Mrs. Giangoli, who conducted two places at the beach.

Vesce answered this accusation with the explanation made in his own defense on the witness stand, that he made this statement to Mayor Walsh, but that it was a deliberate lie.

He said he was promised that anything he said would never be disclosed, and he thought it would be well to tell the lie in order to get O'Hara off the liquor squad.

Bridges today related a story of two stormy years of marriage. He met with the opposition of his wife's sister's husband, Judson H. Clow, he stated. Judson insisted that he was not treating his wife properly.

Last Friday, the husband related, he left his home to go to his place of employment—he worked for the Clows—and after laboring until four in the afternoon was informed without ceremony, that he was "fired."

It was somewhat of a shock, Bridges stated, and he went to his home attempting to find an explanation for the loss of his position. At home, however, he found no comforting wife to greet him, although they had kissed when he left in the morning, according to his story.

Even the furniture had been removed, he insisted.

As a result of the loss of his wife's affections, which Bridges stated were stolen from him by Judson and Oliver, he wishes to be recompensed in the sum of $100,000.

But, it developed, Bridges could find no property which he could attach with ease and for that reason he was compelled to bring a suit to restrain the Clows from disposing of the stock, which is in the form of a trust, which they hold in Clow Brothers, the building concern operating in Cambridge.

In the bill Bridges set forth the serious reasons for his desire for the right to restrain the Clows from disposing of their stock. They wrongfully enticed his wife to leave his home, he stated, and caused her to absent herself, depriving him of the love and affection to which he claims he is entitled.

The case will not be heard for several months.

President Hopkins of Dartmouth Bares Attempt at $16,000 Betting Pool

A Boston man was believed today to be one of the "two crooked gamblers" who attempted to start a pool at Hanover, N. H., on a Dartmouth football game.

The attempt to draw $16,000 in bets out of Dartmouth student pockets was revealed by Pres. Ernest Martin Hopkins, addressing the Connecticut Dartmouth Association on the evils of betting on intercollegiate athletics.

"Two crooked gamblers who tampered with the Chicago White Sox in a World Series a few years back attempted to start a pool at Hanover," the Dartmouth president asserted.

FAKED TELEGRAM.

The Green mentor declared that a telegram was sent to Hanover stating that the students of a rival college had collected $16,000 and would Dartmouth students cover it on the approaching game? College authorities, however, investigated and discovered that the telegram was really from the two gamblers.

One of the biggest names in the White Sox scandal of 1919 was that of a Boston gambler, a man who wagers hundreds and thousands of dollars each day on baseball games and the horses, and who pays as speedily as he collects.

He is a prominent habitue of "Heel Alley," the narrow thoroughfare running from Washington street to City Hall avenue, beneath the bridge of Young's Hotel.

PLAYED CENTER GAME.

Many of the fleecy gambler and his gang leave every day for the ball games, where bets are won and lost, but the money all changes hands in "Heel Alley," none being passed by the real gamblers at the park.

He is known to have sponsored many pools on all sorts of contests, one of his biggest plays being made on the first game between Harvard and the "praying colonels" of Center College. No students were involved in the pool, however, so far as is known, although the gambler numbers many students as his friends.

Test Woman's Sanity

New Haven, Ct., April 16.—Because she startled a railway station crowd by taking a roll of bills from her handbag and scattering the money to the winds, Mrs. Evelyn F. Butler of Hartford was taken to a hospital for observation.

Reuben Rich Baker, rich Quincy yachtsman, and his bride, daughter of his former housekeeper, Mrs. Lyyli M. Ek. Latter is suing Baker for $500,000 love balm. She says Baker jilted her for the daughter.

Atty. J. Alfred Anderson, Finnish consul in Boston, counsel for Mrs. Ek. The love suit will be tried in Federal Court, as Mrs. Ek is an alien. Love notes and kisses, it is said, will figure in the suit.

Mrs. Ek, who charges Baker broke his promise to marry her. She asserts she will produce plenty of ardent love letters to prove her claim when the trial is under way. The star witness against her will be her own daughter—the bride.

Another photo of Mrs. Martha Atwood Baker, the yachtsman's first wife. It was Mrs. Baker who employed Mrs. Ek as a housekeeper in the Baker home before the yachtsman's domestic troubles led to the divorce court.

Mrs. Martha Atwood Baker, singer, who was divorced by the Quincy "skipper" in 1919. Mrs. Ek says Baker started wooing her immediately after the divorce was granted. She says he even gave her a "honeymoon bag."

SCOFFS AT PARENT'S LOVE THEFT CHARGES

Declares She Will Take Stand for Husband if $250,000 Case Goes to Trial

While Reuben R. Baker, middle-aged Quincy yachtsman and his twenty-two-year-old bride delayed their honeymoon, plans were being made today for trial of the $250,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lyyli M. Ek.

Coincident with the filing of the suit in Federal Court by Mrs. Ek, formerly Baker's housekeeper, it was learned that Baker had married her daughter, who came here from Finland four or five years ago.

Branding her mother's charges as ridiculous and the woman herself as jealous, the bride, who is stopping at the Hotel Kenmore with her husband pending disposition of the suit, declared she would testify against Mrs. Ek.

"If I have to," she said, "to help my husband, I shall take the stand against my mother and I will be about the best witness for I know her."

In the meantime Mrs. Ek, an attractive 36-year-old Finnish woman, has left her lodgings in St. Stephen's street, Back Bay.

NOT AFRAID OF LETTERS.

Her counsel, J. Alfred Anderson, Finnish vice-consul in Boston, is said to be making investigations preparatory to the trial of the case, which was brought in Federal Court as his client is an alien.

A representative of Anderson declared that, despite the protestations of Mr. and Mrs. Baker, the yacht builder had promised to marry Mrs. Ek, as letters written by him show. These letters, written from Jamaica, are locked in a safety deposit box, it is said.

"The new Mrs. Baker expressed no apprehension over the letters, and denied that the suit would be settled out of court, which denial was corroborated by Baker.

"The case comes up in September," the bride said, "as far as I know, and the letters will be read at that time. There is nothing in them for us to be afraid of. Also, the case will not be settled out of court."

Called into the room by his wife, the yacht builder denied he or his lawyers, Parsons, Waldich & Crowley, had made any attempt to settle the case out of court.

"It is not true," said Baker, "I intend to go through with this case."

HUSBAND COMES FIRST.

Asked if she would testify for her husband, Mrs. Baker replied:

"I certainly will if he needs me."

ONLY JAIL BARS KEEP GARLAND FROM WIFE

In June, the month of weddings and roses, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garland will try wedded life once more on their Cape Cod farm, after a stormy and hectic marital career for the past few years.

A reconciliation between the "free love crusader" and his wife is scheduled, according to friends, as soon as Garland's twomonth term is completed in a Pennsylvania jail, and Mrs. Garland has recovered from an operation at the Phillips House.

While Mrs. Garland is too ill at the hospital to corroborate the report, Garland, just as he was sentenced to 60 days in jail in Allentown, Pennsylvania, said that he and his wife were reconciled, and that he would join her at their Buzzards Bay farm as soon as he was released.

Philip W. Wrenn, of Dedham, father of Mrs. Garland, said that he knew nothing of a reconciliation.

The charge against Garland in the Pennsylvania town was having improper relations with Miss Bettina Hovey, member of April Farms, the "love colony" started by Garland.

The charges grew out of the birth and death of a child, born to the Hovey girl, who formerly lived in Boston. The child died of suffocation.

Miss Hovey, who had volunteered to the Allentown district attorney the information that she was the mother of the child and Garland its father, disappeared from April Farms with practically all the other members as soon as the sensation was made public.

OUSTED PASTOR REMOVED TO HOSPITAL

Providence, April 16 (A.P.).—Doctors attending Guy Willis Holmes, former Hills Grove, R. I., and New Bedford pastor, who was expelled from the New England Southern conference and indicted by a Boston grand jury on three counts, are fearful of recurrence of serious trouble which affected the ex-minister's right leg years ago.

X-ray photographs were taken today at a private hospital to discover whether an abscess is forming in the muscles of the leg where an operation was performed several years ago.

Pallor of Mr. Holmes to improve after an attack of neuritis at the home of his father-in-law, Mrs. E. H. Hemkins in Quidnessett, R. I., caused his removal to the hospital in order that he might escape the inquiries of his friends and former parishioners.

Ernest Lacock, the former minister's attorney, says that his client's condition will not allow him to appear in court for several days.

KENNEDY SALES FORCE DINE AT YACHT CLUB

An old fashioned shore dinner and a swimsuit featured the annual "Spring Rendezvous" of the sales force of the Kennedy Company, "The Live Store," at the South Boston Yacht Club. P. J. McMahon, past commodore of the yacht club extended a hearty welcome to the group. The dinner was served in the Dutch room, bowling, billiards and bridge followed the banquet. Musical entertainment was furnished by a sextet from the sales force including, Johnnie Riley, Joe Breen, Bart Guiney, Bill Haley, Bill Kelley and Joe Kennedy. Team No. 1, made up of Biggio, Riley, Murphy, Ferguson and Bradley, carried off honors in the bowling match. Marcus McWeeney was victor in the billiard match and Haley and Parker as partners won the bridge game.

TELLEGEN SUED FOR TAXES

Los Angeles, April 16.—"The Greatest Lover," and the screen's foremost character actor, today find themselves in the tolls of the law. Lou Tellegen and Lon Chaney are both sued for income taxes.

SHEAN LETTER TO WOMAN IS STOLEN

Springfield, April 16.—A special delivery letter from Walter Shean, alleged pal of Gerald Chapman, to Mrs. Bertram Mossey of High street was stolen from her mail box on April 12, she told authorities today. She complained to postoffice officials after receiving a second letter from Shean in which he mentioned the first one. Postal records show that it had been delivered. She asked police to investigate.

Mrs. Mossey, whose name was prominently identified with Shean's following his arrest, yesterday filed suit for divorce against her husband, Charles P. Mossey.

She has been separated from her husband since before the New Britain murder.

After Shean's arrest Mrs. Mossey and Miss Hermina Gruendler, also of Springfield, visited Shean in Hartford County jail, where he is now waiting trial.

AFIRE, PLUNGES FOUR STORIES

New York, April 16 (A.P.)—Believed to have become panic-stricken when her clothing caught fire, Miss Teresa Ferrara leaped or fell from the roof of a four-story Bronx apartment house today and was killed.

The woman was a sleep-walker, according to a sister who lived with her in the apartment house. Police decided she was walking to the roof in her sleep when she struck a match to guide her way and her clothing caught fire.

ROXBURY PLANT SWEPT BY FIRE

Fire, discovered early today by the driver of a milk wagon, drove one man to the street, and virtually destroyed the two-story frame building at No. 217 Gardner street, West Roxbury.

The blaze lasted for two hours and gave members of Fire Engine Companies No. 43 and 90, and Ladder No. 17, one of the hottest battles that they had encountered for some time. The property loss was fixed at $1,500.

Smoke was pouring from the offices of the Blue Diamond Materials Company, first floor, when discovered by John Goff, driver for the Whiting Milk Company. He notified Mark Bunker, watchman, and then turned in an alarm from Box No. 2172.

Girls Barred as Patrons in This Barber Shop

Downingtown, Pa., April 16.—While many barber shops are being equipped with ladies' beauty parlors, a Downingtown barber still caters to men principally, so he says: "The town will have one he-man barber shop."

"One day," he said, "four girls came into my place. After I had finished cutting the first girl's hair I said, 'Next,' but the three were only waiting for their companion and walked out."

The barber's objections were based on the fact that some men customers had walked past to other shops believing that the girls were all real honest-to-goodness customers.

consulting public opinion when he decided to favor the World Court. The vote that retires him to private life was not a vote against him personally; he is an estimable gentleman. It was a vote against his World Court attitude.

IF YOU DO NOT need to "keep track of the market," that is, if you are not a "ticker watcher," consider yourself fortunate.

If you are one whose heart goes up and down with the Wall Street prices, do not be frightened by individuals known in Wall Street as "sold-out bulls."

The "sold-out bull" bought stocks lower, sold when he thought they had gone to the top, then groaned in anguish when they went still higher. He wants his stocks back at lower prices, and tells the world that panic is coming, and everything is going to the dogs.

Don't believe him. We shall have trouble some day perhaps, but as yet, our boom hasn't really started.

IF THE ILLINOIS VOTE enlightens the Republican party and turns this nation away from the danger of financial drain by European schemers, the United States boom will last a long time.

Everything in this country, if well managed, from cigar stores to oil wells, is worth more than it ever was. There is more money. We are playing in a bigger game.

THREE INCHES in some newspapers, three lines in others, tell about plans for harnessing tides in the Bay of Fundy. Yet that is the most important news since the invention of the steam engine, and destined to be more mysterious to the human race in future ages, than steam ever was.

Chief Engineer Cooper of the great hydroelectric enterprise, believes that preliminaries, including consent of Canada and the United States, will have been obtained, and construction begun by 1927.

THE RESULT will be regular production of 500,000 actual horsepower, with a peak production of from 700,000 to 800,000 horsepower.

The cost will be from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000.

The State of Maine, after using all it wants, will sell power as long as the ocean tides are lifted by Moon and Sun. That plant will add more than half a million to the World's supply of horsepower.

Discovery of a thousand gold mines, greater than were ever known, would not begin to equal in real value that plant harnessing the high tide on the North Atlantic coast.

A MAN DIED leaving letters of advice and guidance to be read by his son at various ages. When men have written for the Los Angeles Evening Herald such letters as they would write and leave after death to be read by a son at ten, fifteen, twenty-one years of age, etc.

IT'S A PLEASANT, sentimental idea. But what you teach your son before you die is a million times more important than any letters you can leave for him.

A voice from the grave receives scant attention, in these days.

A sufficient letter from a dead father to his son might read, "I taught you what I could, while I was alive, and tried to set you a good example. Now use your brains and try to honor your father and your mother."

GEORGE CAMPBELL CARSON, very old miner, was cheated out of a valuable invention by a powerful smelting company. Now the court gives Carson all the profits of the invention, which will amount to twenty millions, or more.

The corporation will pay, but money new cannot make up for the old miner's years of want and worry, which should have been years of comfort.

How much PROFIT is there in $20,000,000, for a man about to leave the earth and money?

SAW 775 CASES OF ALCOHOL

Landing of 775 cases of alcohol in two alleged rum-running ventures was described today by John Fenton of Lynn, testifying at the trial of former Police Chief William L. Quinn of Swampscott and fourteen others charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor ashore at Swampscott.

Four Boston men whose names he did not know were among the Lynn and Swampscott men who took part in the landing, Fenton declared, and he identified Patrick J. McDonnell of Boston, one of the defendants as a man who stood by on the beach and watched the unloading of a rum dory.

Several others of the alleged conspirators stood up one after another in the courtroom as Fenton pointed them out as members of the alleged landing party.

"FUSS" OVER PAYMENT.

The witness, who had testified previously to collecting $15 for a night's work on the beach, declared that George Maccia, one of the defendants who had pleaded guilty, demanded and got $100 for participating in the landing, although he was paid only after a "fuss."

Fenton said that the "fuss" occurred because Harry Brown, another defendant, wanted to pay Maccia only $90.

Under questioning by Assistant U. S. Attorney Hale, Fenton described what were officially labeled "episodes 3 and 4." About 400 cases were landed at the first of these, and about 375 at the second, he said.

NAMES TWO ESTATES.

"I formed part of the landing chain, together with Arthur Brown, Joe Blair, John Cryan, Francis Ward and four men from Boston," said Fenton. "We took the stuff from the Milton estate to the Johnson estate.

"George Garrett was in the Johnson estate garage checking off the number of cases. Armstrong told me to see that the cases were put in the corner of the garage away from the windows. George Brown and Dave Hudson were others in the party."

He placed David Seigal, John Hudson, a man named Millio, Joseph and John LaFrance, George Maccia, George Acker, John Cryan, Francis Ward and four or five from Boston at the other landing episode.

WALTER CAMP ESTATE TOTALS $327,974

New Haven, Ct., April 16.—The estate of the late Walter Camp, formerly athletic director at Yale, was given as $327,974.22 in a report made to Judge Gilson of the probate court. It was left to his widow, Mrs. Alice Sumner Camp, as residuary legatee, an agreement having been made before the death of Mr. Camp that the widow should take care of his children, Walter Camp, Jr., and Mrs. H. S. Hobson, with amount which was willed to her, Judge Gilson ordered the sum to be paid to Mrs. Camp.

FORMER BAKER YACHT MAN ARRESTED

rant charging forgery of a $15,000 note and larceny of $12,000, together with perjury.

The alleged larceny and forgery took place in September of 1923, and the perjury March 8, 1924.

According to the police, Borden, who has an office in the Old South Building, was marine superintendent of the yacht basin before and during the war.

President Reuben R. Baker of the basement has been named defendant in a breach-of-promise suit brought by his mother-in-law and former housekeeper, Mrs. Lyyll M. Ek.

The police say that while Borden was employed at the Basin, his employers entered into an agreement with an individual, negotiations for which were broken off before its conclusion. The uncompleted agreement was then placed in the files of the Basin and subsequently disappeared.

Later Charles W. Ryder, Boston attorney of No. 50 Federal street, according to the police, helped to negotiate a $15,000 note with a Boston bank, which loaned $12,000 on it. The bank then found the note to be a forgery and the police say Attorney Ryder made good the amount.

GIRL TAKES POISON AFTER LOVE QUARREL

Franklin, N. H., April 16 (A.P.)—Despondent after a quarrel over a love affair, according to police, Miss Beatrice Hines, about 21 years old, attempted to kill herself by drinking poison. Today doctors said that her condition was serious. She is an employe of a needle shop here.

Girl Forger Jailed

New York, April 16.—Ruth Hall, a pretty twenty-year-old girl, was sentenced to prison for forgery. She told the judge she should not be punished for stealing as she had been raised in luxury and could not earn enough to maintain her standard of living after dissipating the fortune she had inherited.

STRIKERS URGE GOVERNOR LIFT RIOT ACT

Passaic, N. J., April 16 (A.P.)—Balked in their efforts to obtain President Coolidge's support of their cause, leaders of the 16,000 textile mill strikers today placed in Governor Moore their hope for official interference against the police method of handling the strike situation.

In response to the strikers' plea for intervention by Governor Moore, an opinion was prepared by Attorney-General Katzenbach on the question of the Governor's Power to act. Outstanding of all legal phases involved in the strike is a statute passed 62 years ago. This is the riot act, passed in 1864.

Under the riot act regulations, proclaimed in effect by Sheriff Simmo, several of the strikers' leaders were arrested. Albert Weisbord, Harvard graduate and chairman of the Workers' United Front Committee, one of those arrested, still is in jail in default of $25,000 bail, on charges of inciting riots. He will be given a hearing tomorrow on a writ of habeas corpus, alleging illegal detention as the result of a decision by Supreme Court Justice Black at Jersey City.

The Rev. Norman Thomas, one-time Socialist candidate for Governor of New York, who was arrested in Garfield as he was addressing a meeting of strikers, obtained release on $10,000 bail. Robert Dunn, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, was released on the same bail. The Civil Liberties Union supported the strikers' plea to Governor Moore.

GIRL INJURED IN LEAPING FROM AUTOMOBILE

Dazed and weak, Miss Tillie Swanson, a maid employed in Wedgemere avenue, Winchester, is at the Winchester Hospital today suffering from a scalp wound and bruises, received when she jumped from an automobile.

Miss Swanson was picked up by Winchester police early today at Symmes road and Bacon street after a resident of that section had notified them that a woman was lying in the road.

While Miss Swanson is too dazed to tell a coherent story, police learned that she and a friend, Helga Seastrom, accepted an auto ride while waiting for a street car.

Miss Seastrom, police say, left the car near her home, and Miss Swanson remained in the machine believing the driver would take her home. When the machine swung away from the direction of Wedgemere avenue, according to the information that police gathered, Miss Swanson leaped out. She suffered a painful scalp wound in the fall.

QUINCY WOMEN IN 'KIDNAPING'

Worcester, April 16.—A marital tangle was revealed today when two Quincy women were ordered to appear in court here next Thursday on kidnaping charges.

The women are Mrs. Eva Newell Vincent and her mother, Mrs. Nancy Newell, charged with kidnaping Mrs. Vincent's minor child, Dorothy.

The complainant is the child's father, Charles L. Vincent of New Haven, with whosem other in Sutton the little girl was staying.

The mixup arose from the claim of both Vincent and his former wife that each obtained a divorce and each was granted custody of the child.

Mrs. Vincent claims that she was granted a divorce in Massachusetts, together with custody of little Dorothy. Vincent, on the other hand, said the child was given him when he obtained a divorce in Connecticut.

Summonses were served on the women at their Quincy home by a trooper of the State constabulary.

CROWLEY RAPS BAIL BONDSMEN

Bail commissioners in Boston were rebuked today in a general order promulgated by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley and sent out to the various police divisions under the signature of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson.

They were warned to respect department regulations and police officials were ordered to enforce the regulations.

Bail commissioners go behind the rails in police stations and make themselves at home comfortably waiting to solicit business when prisoners are brought in, according to the superintendent.

This is a violation of the rules and must be stopped at once, says the order. Police officers were criticised for favoring certain bail commissioners to the exclusion of others, and this too was ordered stopped.

Lucky Jimmy Was Born to Die in Bed

Bedford Hills, N. Y., April 16 (I.N.S.)—One man was so fatally injured he may die, while his companion was carried 600 feet on the cowcatcher of a locomotive when a heavy truck was hit by a fast milk train here today.

Solomon Teveloz of New Haven, the chauffeur, suffered a fractured skull. "Jimmy" Doran of New Haven, asleep on the box of the truck, was lifted bodily onto the front of the locomotive and was uninjured.

WILSON ORDERS COPS TO GUARD SPRING DRUNK CROP

Spring came into police headquarters today and with its coming there are ten many drunks weaving their uncharted ways through the streets, the Police Commissioner declared in a general order relayed to all divisions by Superintendent Crowley.

A precious order to keep drunks off the streets and house them, until sober, was sent out by the Commissioner, he said, but if his mandate had been carried out he hasn't noticed it.

"In going about the city," his order reads, "I have noticed a large number of drunken men on the streets and, at the same time, noticed that the police officers paid very little attention to this class of offender."

Commissioner Wilson asserted that a large number of larceny, assault and battery and robbery cases are recorded on the police books simply because there are so many drunken men wandering the streets of Boston.

Arrest of these men and their being kept in the protection of the police stations may do much to cut down the number of crimes, he declared.

WOMEN'S NEW SHOE STYLES IN 4 TYPES

Patterns Are Confined to the Straps, Oxfords, Higher-Cut Cores and Pumps

Everett Bradley, president of the New England shoe and leather exposition, made this announcement today on his return from a joint style conference in New York attended by representatives of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association.

The outlook for the turned shoe business never was brighter, Mr. Bradley said. On the subject of styles, he said:

"In women's footwear patterns will be confined to four main types, straps, oxfords, higher cut cores and pumps.

"Lasts will conform to the present type of medium round toe. Heels vary according to the type of shoe. Materials will be patent and tan leather, satin, colored and black kid, calf and suede, with novelty leathers, reptilian and others for trimming."

CARDINAL TO CONFIRM CONVERTS ON MAY 16

The sacrament of confirmation will be administered to converts by Cardinal O'Connell at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Sunday, May 16, at 4 p. m. Throughout each year a large number of persons are instructed in the doctrines of the Catholic faith and are then received into the church. This is true in practically every parish in the archdiocese. The number of converts this year is expected to exceed that of any former year.

The ceremony of administering of the sacrament is very impressive and throngs attend it. The candidates will be instructed as to the formalities by the parish priest of the parish with which he or she is identified.

JAPS DECORATE AMERICAN CREW FOR HEROIC RESCUE

Yokohama, April 16 (A.P.).—The captain and crew of the American steamer Java Arrow, which rescued thirteen survivors of the Japanese steamer Daishin Maru, February 19 after their vessel had drifted helpless for four weeks and they were near death, were decorated today with the medal of merit with scarlet cordon, granted by the Emperor of Japan.

LIMERICK TOLD STORY OF JAY-WALKER'S FATE

Chicago, April 16 (A.P.).—William Rockwell, fifty, believed to be from Schoolcrest, Mich., was fatally injured when struck by a street car.

In a notebook, scrawled in pencil, was a limerick recounting the story of a "jay-walker" who was knocked down by a street car while crossing a street.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Specially Posed for the Boston Evening American.

TITLES WILL BLOOM IN the Newport social garden this Summer. And personages whose cognomens lack exalted prefixes but whose place in the aristocracy or blood or money is supreme also will flourish in the Rhode Island Spa.

LORD AND LADY CAMOYS have taken the Morrell cottage out on Ochre Point for the season and will have with them their young hopefuls—a trio—the Honorable Sherman Stoner, the Honorable Nordine Stoner and the Honorable Noreen Stoner.

FORMERLY MISS SHERMAN, Lady Camoys is one of Newport's highly decorative figures, her costumes always marked for their costly simplicity. She and Lord Camoys sailed recently for the other side for a stay preliminary to the Newport entry.

STUART DUNCAN also went over to meet Mrs. Duncan on her arrival from a world-girdling cruise. Word comes up from Newport of a splendid ballroom to be erected by the Duncans as an addition to their Newport establishment.

"BONNIECREST" is the villa's name and the ballroom, said to be a gorgeous affair of white and gold done in the manner of the Empire. A true period room, its cost runs way up into five figures.

YOUNG Mr. and Mrs. John P. Duncan (Elizabeth Thorndike), the son and daughter-in-law in the Duncan household, will, in all probability, be in evidence at Newport in that set frequenting Bellevue avenue, the Casino and Bailey's.

RUMORS THAT the Harry Hill Thorndikes will be Newporters the coming Summer persist. At any rate, the Thorndikes have been on an inspection tour about Newport villas. They'll be an interesting addition to the smart world there.

BAR HARBOR has been their warm weather habitat — where Mrs. Thorndike and the two daughters out in society took prominent place in those diversions for which the exclusive Maine resort is famous.

MRS. THORNDIKE was a Gurnee of New York, and but recently has emerged from a period of mourning for her mother, the late Mrs. Walter Gurnee. The Thorndike daughters, Miss Isabel and Miss Helen, talented and attractive, will be much at home in Newport.

YOUNG JOHN BACON ASPEGREN, student at smart and exclusive St. George's School in Middletown, just outside Newport, has so far recovered from his very serious illness as to resume school routine once again.

HE AND HIS MOTHER, Mrs. John Aspegren, have just come up from Florida whither they went following the young man's illness. Mrs. Aspegren, a much paragraphed Newport hostess and chatelaine of a magnificent villa, has, I believe, disposed of her Newport residence since Mr. Aspegren's death.

CLASS DAY AT LATIN SCHOOL

Former U. S. Senator David I. Walsh delivered the Class Day address today before the graduating class of the Public Latin School at the Class Day exercises in avenue Louis Pasteur. Patrick T. Campbell, head master, presided and introduced the speaker.

Following the exercises there was a review of the school regiment, of which Lieutenant Colonel George E. Penney, M. N. G., is the officer instructor.

Receiving the review with former Senator Walsh were Lieutenant-Colonel Henry C. Cormerais, past commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company; Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas F. Murphy, assistant chief of staff for operations, 26th division, M. N. G., and James T. Williams, Jr., editor Boston Evening American.

Head Master Campbell is a strong believer in the value of training with the colors for the common defense, and the Public Latin School Regiment is one of the best in the Commonwealth.

Graduates of the Public Latin School, which was founded in 1635, have fought in every American war, and the school is represented today by graduates who are serving with the colors in all branches of the armed forces of the United States afield and afloat.

'MA'S JEALOUS!' SAYS BRIDE OF BAKER

My husband means more to me than anything else now. He comes before my mother. If I take the stand I will be about the best witness against my mother, because I know her."

Told that her mother had moved Mrs. Baker replied: "I don't know where she could have gone. My mother has been short-sighted. She is jealous, and her charges are ridiculous. I love my husband. I would have married him if he didn't have a nickel to his name.

"If I ever thought for a moment that my husband loved my mother I would not have married him. But that is absurd. I can't understand why she has done this thing, or why she says she didn't know that Mr. Baker and I were to be married.

"He gave me my engagement ring fully two months ago and she knew it. He put me under the instruction of private tutors to improve my English. My mother knew I was in the school and she knew the reason I was there.

"I had planned to see that mother was happy and well cared for for the rest of her life after I was married."

MOTHER TELLS STORY.

Mrs. Ek, telling her story of the alleged broken romance with her former employer, said she was born in Finland and married at the age of seventeen.

"This daughter who has now turned against me so cruelly was born in November, 1902," she said. "That makes her only twenty-two years old, although she is said to have given her age on the marriage intentions as twenty-four. Mr. Baker is forty-nine, although he is said to have given his age as forty-six.

"I came to the United States in 1904 and worked in different places, saving money to send home for my child. In 1914 the first Mrs. Baker, the one that he divorced, hired me to work in their home in Quincy.

"Mr. Baker was very kind and attentive to me from the first. He and his wife didn't get along very well together. Finally they separated and he got a divorce for desertion in 1918. It was after that he talked about marrying me.

"He was very affectionate. He gave me a watch and a bracelet and rings and a coat and many things. He gave me a traveling clock and a steamer trunk. Some of the things were for our honeymoon.

"That same year he was divorced I sent $300 to Finland so my daughter could come here to live with me. He was on a trip to Jamaica when she arrived. When he met her he treated her like a daughter.

"He always wrote me often when he was away. I guess there won't be any trouble about proving by the letters I have given my lawyer that he regarded me as his intended wife. He used to bring home rum from his trips to the West Indies.

"Last January we closed up the house in Quincy, and I came in to St. Stephen street to live while he went on his regular Spring trip to Jamaica.

"He kept putting off going and now I can see that it was because of the affair with my daughter. But he came to see me every day. We would go to lunch together and he was very affectionate until March 24. That day he came to me and said our marriage was off. There was no explanation. He just said he wouldn't marry me."

Baker said he first fell in love with his wife when he saw a photograph of her as a girl of twelve.

"I watched her grow up into a wonderful woman," he said, "and I kept silent. Sometimes it was hard, very hard, but I realized that she was a lovely girl with all her life before her, while I was a man of middle age.

"Then last November, her birthday month, I discovered that Irene cared for me as I did for her. My lips were no longer sealed. Since then we both have been happy. I gave her an engagement ring two months ago."

He was reluctant to discuss his mother-in-law. "I feel more sorry for her than angry," he said, "I have written her letters and I have given her presents, but I had told her plainly that I couldn't marry her. This was when I saw that she seemed to be getting to fond of me. My only error, perhaps, was in being too kind."

Thrice Told Tale of Tangle in Love

HERE is a summary of the claims of all parties involved in the unusual love triangle which has resulted in a $250,000 breach of promise suit being brought against Reuben E. Baker, Quincy yachtsman, by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lyyli Wallin Ek.

MOTHER SAYS:

It was after his divorce that he talked about marrying me. He was very affectionate. He gave me many gifts. Some of the things were for our honeymoon. He used to bring home rum and such things from the West Indies. We would go to lunch together and he was very affectionate until March 24. That day he came to me and said our marriage was off.

HUSBAND SAYS:

I watched her (his wife) grow into a wonderful woman. Last November, her birthday month, I discovered Irene cared for me. Since then we both have been deliriously happy. I feel more sorry for my mother-in-law than angry. I have written her letters and given her presents, but I had told her plainly I couldn't marry her. This was when she seemed to be getting too fond of me. My only error, perhaps, was in being too kind to her.

DAUGHTER SAYS:

Ridiculous. It's so silly. Mother is jealous. I never saw anything to suggest Mr. Baker had the slightest intention of marrying her. My mother has been short-sighted. If I ever thought for a moment that my husband had loved my mother I would not have married him.

NORGE TIES UP IN LENINGRAD FOR REPAIR

Big Dirigible May Wait Fortnight Before Hop for Alaska

Leningrad, April 16 (I.N.S.).—The Amundsen-Ellsworth polar dirigible Norge, having undergone her first severe test in the air, is being overhauled here preparatory to her flight to Spitsbergen, whence she takes off for the North Pole and Alaska.

Three of the motors are being replaced and the supply of hydrogen is being replenished. Commander Nobile said he does not intend to tarry long in Leningrad, and as soon as the necessary overhauling is done he will hop off for Spitsbergen, providing he is advised that preparations have been made there for the arrival.

It is possible, however, that the Norge may have to await a fortnight in Leningrad while Captain Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth are arranging for the reception in Spitsbergen.

The Norge averaged about forty miles an hour in her 700-mile trip from Oslo through the fog. The 2,500-mile hop from Spitsbergen to Point Barrow will require three days and nights, it is estimated.

CHARLESTOWN FIRE FORCES 23 TO FLEE

Charlestown firemen had their hands full subduing a fire and preventing a panic among women and children who were driven from their homes at Nos. 10 and 12 Sheafe street by a fire that did damage estimated at $2,500.

In all 23 persons were obliged to make a hasty exit.

STONE & WEBSTER'S FUTURE HOME

Transfer of the Massachusetts Trust building, at Franklin, Federal and Devonshire streets, was made in one of biggest realty deals recorded this year.

Control of the Massachusetts Trust Building, located on Franklin, Federal and Devonshire streets, passes to Stone & Webster by a transaction reported by the office of W. J. McDonald. The sale involves about 23,000 square feet of land and a ten-story building.

The building was erected by the John Hancock Life Insurance Company about 15 years ago, and is considered one of the finest office buildings in Boston.

The building is to be occupied by Stone & Webster as soon as the present leases expire.

This property adjoins the First National Bank building, making the entire block with the two ownerships. Directly opposite is the new location of Lee, Higginson & Company, diagonally opposite the new Chamber of Commerce building.

The trustees of the Massachusetts Trust building were General Edgar R. Champlin, Fred P. Hayward, and W. J. McDonald.

The assessed value of the building is $1,600,000, and of the land it occupies, $1,649,700, a total of $3,250,000.

As a part of the transaction, Stone & Webster conveys the property recently acquired by them, located on Water and Kilby streets, formerly owned and occupied by the John C. Paige Company and Field & Cowles containing about 13,000 square feet of land, having a total assessed valuation of nearly $1,000,000. The title to this property passes to the Atlantic National Bank.

Hayes & Read will have charge of the building for Stone & Webster.

CROWD PAYS $25 A SEAT TO HEAR SPANISH STAR

New York, April 16 (A.P.)—The long-delayed American debut of Senorita Raquel Meller, the Castilian singer of Parisian fame, was the outstanding Broadway theatrical event this week.

Heralded by three years of press agentry and stories of her temperament, shed rew a capacity audience at her premiere at the Empire Theatre, with top prices for seats at $25.

The petite senorita has limited her appearances to three matinees and three night performances for her repertoire of four weeks, with tickets selling at $15 for the remainder of the engagement.

However, the week's honors did not all go to her, for the critics were more than generous in their reception of Sir James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," with Helen Hayes and Kenneth McKenna. Some even professed to see in the renewed popularity of this old vehicle of Maud Adams, a return to a more modest theatre in the forthcoming season.

Along with this prediction there also was published during the past week a letter from Irving Bailin, now abroad, in which he professed to see a return to the themes of crinoline days on the musical stage.

BOSTON POSTOFFICE CLERKS ELECT OFFICERS

In the balloting for officers of Local 109, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, John A. Kelley was elected president for the seventh successive term, this being a decidedly unusual distinction.

Other officers elected are: Vice president, Edward F. Fitzgerald, South Postal Station; recording secretary, William A. Collins, general postoffice; financial secretary, Joseph T. Ahern, general postoffice; treasurer, Bernard W. O'Brien, Back Bay postal station.

The following were chosen trustees: H. O. Clark, general postoffice; A. A. Dorsey, general postoffice, Charles Walters of the Back Bay postal station.

COURT REFUSES PLEA OF PARTIAL GUILT

The plea of a Harvard Law School student, David Brunswick, that he was partly guilty of failing to stop his automobile after being signaled to do so by a police officer, failed to coincide with the law as upheld by Judge Arthur P. Stone, in the East Cambridge Court, and he imposed a fine of $25.

Brunswick told the court there were extenuating circumstances. He said he did not know the officer who was signalling and therefore did not stop.

GAS HORN RULING TO BE TESTED IN COURT

The Fulton Company of Milwaukee will test a ruling of Registrar Frank A. Goodwin before the Supreme Court.

Percy C. MacFarlane, New England agent of the company, was before Judge Hayden and a jury in Superior Court on an appeal from a $5 fine for using a gas exhaust horn on an automobile. Mr. Goodwin has declared them illegal in Massachusetts. This is the first time a ruling of his will have been brought to the Supreme Court.

TROUT FISHING SEASON ON

Disciples of Izaak Walton set out today with rod and line despite the chill, for the trout are leaping in the brooks and the open season is on.

Only 25 trout are allowed to one person in one day, while no brook trout of less than six inches may be taken legally, or no brown or rainbow trout less than eight inches in length.

If two or more persons are fishing from the same boat or raft the aggregate take can be no more than 50 in a day, while night fishing is forbidden from two hours after sunset to one hour before sunrise.

HOT DOGS TWICE WEEKLY FOR LYNN HIGH PUPILS

Torrid canines will be served at the lunch-counter of Lynn Classical High School but twice a week hereafter.

This is in the nature of a compromise between Principal Fred C. Mitchell, seconded by Mayor Bauer, who frowned upon the hot dogs, and the school pupils, who consider the succulent frankfort imbedded between rolls as essential to their health, taste and pursuit of happiness.

At first Principal Mitchell barred the dogs altogether, but so great was the protest that the compromise finally was reached.

Principal Mitchell cited as precedent the course of action adopted by what is termed the model school kitchen of the country in Washington. There the dogs are served twice a week, so he adopted this plan, and everybody appears satisfied.

The whole War of the Dogs was started when Mayor Bauer inspected the school lunch counters and found that the pupils, in his opinion, were eating altogether too much pie and cake.

RESIDENTS CONTEST BETTERMENTS CLAIM

Objection to betterment assessments to their property which, the city claimed, were benefitted by the widening of Province street between School and Bromfield streets, has been made to the Supreme Judicial Court by Alexander Whiteside and George R. Grantham, trustees under the will of Patrick McAleer, the L. E. Waterman Company, Emma L. Street and Charles W. Rowell. They seek to quash an order of the street commissioners passed on March 4, calling respectively for betterments of $72,381, $21,575, $7,313 and $3,896.

BODY OF WIFE UNCLAIMED

Search was begun today for Harry Ayer of No. 3 Washington street, Charlestown, who is wanted to claim the body of his wife which is at the Southern mortuary. The woman died at the City Hospital on Sunday.

Ayer knows of his wife's death, and he left his Charlestown home a few hours after his wife died for the purpose of seeing a friend and then both were to claim the body.

Since then the hospital authorities have seen nothing of Ayer, nor have they heard anything from the man.

BUS HAS COME TO STAY, SAYS THORNTON

"Prohibition Better Than No Liquor at All!" Remarks Canadian R. R. Chief

The motor bus has come to stay as a competitor with railroads in short-haul transportation and this fact may as well be accepted, no matter how much railroad magnates regret it, declared Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, who was in the Hub today as guest of the Chamber of Commerce.

"For railroads, steam is better than electrification in the long run, because of the item of cost, but density of traffic around large cities demands electrification," said the titled Canadian magnate, who is boss of 22,000 miles of railroad, the largest system in the world.

"Coal is the most economical factor under general conditions. On heavy mountain grades there arises the problem of tunneling versus electrification except where because of the length of the tunnel, smoke from a steam locomotive would fill it."

Asked about his observations on prohibition, Sir Henry, who is a native of the United States, replied: "Prohibition is better than no liquor at all. That, I believe, sums up the entire situation."

He addressed the Chamber of Commerce members at noon. Sir Henry is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and was long connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad, later receiving his knighthood from the British crown for putting the Great Eastern Railway of England on a sound basis.

TABLET OF '75 FOR MEDFORD

The dedication of a bronze tablet to the Medford Minute Men of 1775 will mark the observance of Patriots' Day program arranged by Chairman Everett W. Stone and the Citizens' Committee of Medford.

The memorial will be unveiled on the library grounds at High street and Hillside avenue at 11:30 a. m. Chairman Stone will make the presentation and Mayor Richard B. Coolidge will accept the tablet in behalf of the city. Wellington Wells, president of the State Senate and of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of The American Revolution, will also make an address.

The day will open officially with the tolling of church bells at 7 a. m. Sergeant Geoffrey Clifford of Troop C, 110th Cavalry, M. N. G., will ride through the city as Paul Revere, while chime peal from churches and Goddard Chapel tower at Tufts College.

Preceding the unveiling, veterans and patriotic organizations will have their annual parade.

In the afternoon and evening school children and organizations of the city will contribute to a varied program and the day will be completed in the evening with a ball under the auspices of Medford Post, No. 1012, Veterans of Foreign Wars in Elks' Hall.

FIRES SHOTS INTO HOME OF BELGIAN OFFICIAL

Ghent, Belgium, April 16 (A.P.)—An unknown person today fired three revolver shots at the door of the home of Minister of Railways Edouard Anseele, who is at present in Italy, and then threw the head of a cannon shell into one of the windows. The shell failed to explode. No one was hurt. The police believe the shooter mentally unbalanced.

Real 'Dry' Joker

Sir Henry Thornton, Canadian National railroads head, guest of Hub Chamber, says motor bus has come to stay and that "prohibition is better than no liquor at all."

TWO MORE HUB BROKERS ARE ARRESTED

W. E. Norton of Defunct Firm and John Rock Held in Stock Theft

Two more arrests of stockbrokers were made today when William E. Norton of the defunct firm of Norton & Company, No. 61 Devonshire street, and John Rock of Milton were taken into custody by Inspectors Haggerty and Farrell.

Norton, who is twenty-seven years old and lives at No. 314 Savin Hill avenue, was arrested on an indictment warrant charging larceny in seven counts. It was also alleged that he maintained a bucketshop.

The indictment charges specifically the larceny of $4,665 from George H. Gruff of No. 466 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, on divers dates, and larceny from Gudian Stengzner of No. 20 Ballard street, Norwood. Rock was arrested in connection with the same offenses.

Wollaston Show to Repeat

The annual show of the Wollaston Improvement Association was presented at the Glenwood Theatre, in that section, and proved to be one of the best amateur performances staged in years. The bill will also be presented tonight and tomorrow evening.

SOVIET CLAIMS ARCTIC LANDS; FEARS FOES

Thinks Polar Expeditions Indicate That Its Enemies Plan Warfare

Moscow, April 16 (I.N.S.).—Soviet Russia today laid claim to all land in the Arctic Circle from the Northern boundary of Russia to the Pole, excepting land already recognized as belonging to other powers.

The claim took the form of a law enacted by the Central Committee. The spokesman for the committee pointed out that Great Britain had claimed the same privileges for the Antarctic regions.

As further explanation for the law, it was charged that the numerous polar expeditions now under way were prompted by a desire of the "imperialistic powers" to annex Arctic territory, thereby obtaining military access to Soviet Russia.

ILLINOIS LEADS WITH 27,434 FARM RADIOS

Washington, April 16 (I.N.S.).—Illinois led the United States in the number of radio sets on farms, January 1, 1926, with 27,434, the Department of Commerce announced today, in its first radio census of rural districts. New York's total was 24,820. New Mexico tailed the list with 288 radios on farms.

Woman Maker of Laws Has New Baby

Manchester, N. H., April 16 (A.P.)—Mrs. Augusta Pillsbury, a member of the New Hampshire Legislature, gave birth to a daughter at a hospital today.

This is said to be the first time in the United States that a woman member of any Legislature has become a mother during her term of office.

Mrs. Pillsbury is the wife of Secretary of State Hobart Pillsbury.

Girl Weds Rival of Fiance After Love Tiff

Two weeks after quarrelling with the youth she had taken out a license to marry, Elizabeth F. Noftel, 18 years of age, of No. 70 Harvard street, Cambridge, married her first suitor's rival.

Two months ago the girl and John Antanitis, also 18 years of age, at the Cambridge City Hall took out intentions to wed. She boarded at his home. They disagreed and the unusual marriage license was returned April 1. The day following she obtained a license to marry Alton E. Hanscom, 18 years of age, of No. 30 Hastings street, Cambridge. They were married last Monday. It has been learned

Skull Fractured

Portland, Me., April 16.—Willis McGlauflin, 86, was probably fatally injured when a coupe he was driving was demolished by a locomotive at the Rigby freight yard, South Portland.

HUB STORES ARE IDEAL, SAYS SHIRLEY GREY

All over the United States has Shirley Grey, leading woman of "Easy Come, Easy Go," toured, but she waited until she came to Boston before buying her Spring outfit of clothing.

Today she laid in a new Spring hat and the other finery, shopping in Hub stores because, she declared the styles are last minute in Boston and prices are considerably more reasonable than in New York.

The blonde ingenue was agreeably surprised at the courtesy and service displayed by the store clerks in making her purchases and she declared them the most polite she has ever met.

Miss Grey, who last year won the photographers' trophy as the prettiest actress on the Chicago stage, intends to make the Hub her shopping centre hereafter.

WIFE FOUND IN THRILLING CHASE

David Hoffman got his woman.

But it was not until he had raced a train, been injured in an auto accident, and had been mistaken for a thug, that Hoffman found his wife in this city.

Mrs. Hoffman left her home in New York five weeks ago, and her frantic husband, a hatter, could not find her. Though he appealed to the police and dailed the newspapers to his aid.

Finally, however, Mrs. Bessie Gold stein saw the woman's picture in a newspaper and recognized her as a new tenant at No. 10 McLean street, New End. She informed Hoffman.

When his taxi missed the midnight train at the Grand Central Station in New York by seconds, he commanded the driver to make record time to the 125th street station. Just as the race was all but won a street-town car hit the hurrying taxi and Hoffman was taken to hospital.

He left the institution at early morn and again went to the Grand Central Station. Hoffman and a friend leaped out of a cab on Mott street, and dashed into Mrs. Goldstein's store. Special Officer Holmes and O'Neil of the Jay street division, saw them leap from the cab and thought it was a hold-up. The frantic New York hatter—by this time suffering of a mad hatter—explained. Then he went upstairs and found his wife.

They went back to New York today.

Reports Attack

Samuel Herscovitz of Matrapan, reported to police that when he neared his home two men rapped from behind a hedge and beat him over the head with an iron pipe. He believes the attack a result of labor troubles in a shop of which he is foreman.

Beliette had charged his wife [illegible]t gross and confirmed habits of [illegible]xication, though when he took the witness stand he admitted that he had never been for take a drink of intoxicants for [illegible] had he ever smelled liquor on her breath.

Yesterday Judge Hitch[illegible] "When under the oath do you want a divorce at your age, 62 years?" he asked. "I come within a few days of appearing before you as a witness guilty of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. You had better come to terms with her and forget the divorce libel for the sake of your children."

IKE "SALLIE" BOOK AGENT ESCAPES CAPTURE

A man wearing a Salvation Army uniform, and purporting to be a salesman for a new book which is widely stated that organization was using, escaped arrest in Cambridge after Adjutant William Burke of the Cambridge Salvation Army headquarters had questioned and chased him.

The pseudo Salvationist member had appeared at the home of Edward Nickson, No. 336 Harvard street, Cambridge, and after explaining the "new book to be published for $1?" pocketed the money and gave no receipt.

EXPERT ON INSECTS TESTIFIES IN COURT

Brockton, April 16.—An "[illegible]sectologist," Louis M. Rich of Boston, was called into Superior Court here to testify for the defense in a peculiar civil suit. Mrs. Florence M. Keith of Bridgewater is suing Miss Vila M. Bass, a former [illegible] school teacher, for $375 which Mrs. Keith says she paid in rent for a cottage at Onset.

Mrs. Keith told the jury that bed bugs drove her family out of the cottage within a week and that she wants the money back that she paid Miss Bass for rent. Entomologist Rich testified that he found no traces of bed bugs at the cottage.

New Colonial Gas

ALL ordinary gasoline contains "borderland"—that mixture with some of the characteristics of both kerosene and gasoline which causes knocking, sluggish pick-up, loss of mileage and lack of power.

The New Colonial Gas all above the Borderland

Inferior Gasoline often sold at cut rates—large percentage of Kerosene

BORDERLAND

KEROSENE

Note

IF gasoline and kerosene settled in layers, here's what you'd see if you put into a test-tube that part of crude oil from which gasoline is made.

Top—a layer of good gasoline.

Bottom—a layer of kerosene.

Between—in the "borderland," a mixture that has some of the worthlessness of both gasoline and kerosene, and is the real cause of knocking, dragging, dark-carbon burning, and loss of flexibility, speed and power.

Proof of Experience

EVER since we brought out NEW COLONIAL GASOLINE on September 5, 1925, we have proved to thousands of motorists that the "knocking" in their engines, which they thought was due to mechanical defects, was really caused by gasoline which contained "borderland."

When they changed to NEW COLONIAL GASOLINE they found that the knocking was eliminated. Freedom from knocking, which you obtain with NEW COLONIAL GASOLINE, gives an added flexibility and a swift acceleration, which are impossible with a gas inclined to knock.

"The Insulated Glenwood is the finest baking range that I've ever used"

No one has ever praised Glenwood Ranges so highly as the housewives who have used them. For instance, one woman who owns an Insulated Glenwood says this in a letter to the Glenwood Range Co.

"The Oven Heat Control is wonderful in taking the anxiety off your mind when trying to do other work while baking.

"I have tried it out roasting chickens, baking pies and different cakes and cookies, and yesterday the Christmas turkey was done to a turn—brown and delicious.

"It bakes everything just perfectly, and then it is so beautiful to look at and makes the kitchen so light and cheerful."

ALLEGED ALIEN 'COACHING' SCORED

Federal Court of Appeals to Decide on Application to Stay Deportation

The alleged practice of "coaching" aliens by attorneys prior to investigation by immigration inspectors was attacked in the local U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Asst. U. S. Attorney George R. Farnum in an argument against the admission of Goon Hen Soo.

Soo has been ordered deported because he was unable to satisfy the immigration authorities that he was the son of an American citizen and an application for a writ of habeas corpus by his counsel to temporarily halt deportation was refused by Judge Lowell in the lower courts.

Attorneys for Soo argued that his deportation was illegal in that he had been denied a court trial proceeding a hearing before the immigration commissioner, and secondly because he was not permitted to retain counsel until that hearing was completed.

Attorney Farnum retorted that an alien has no right to a lawyer until the government has first examined him or her with respect to the facts pertinent to the question of admissibility into the country.

The appeal from the lower court refusal for a writ of habeas corpus was taken under advisement by the Appeals Court.

TERROR REIGNS IN PEKIN

Pekin, April 16 (INS)—Pekin was in chaos today as the rival factions of the warring armies, which have been fighting the capital against the combined armies of General Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tso-lin, began to move around Pekin under the command of a group of other statesmen were doing their best to maintain order. The gates of the city are open, and the population is in a state bordering on terror.

The presidential palace, the premier, and the foreign legations are filling in between the various quarters. The general staff of the united forces will enter Pekin today.

Shoots Sisters, Kills Self

New York, April 16. While three children looked on helpless, two sisters were shot to death by their half brother who ended his life during a family row. The victims were Minnie Vasopora and Philomena Vasopora.

DOCTOR SLAIN; NURSE HELD

Morgantown, W. Va., April 16 (I.N.S.)—Jealousy is today was the motive of the slaying of Dr. William B. Bowyer, forty-seven, noted West Virginia surgeon, with his office with a hatchet, police County Prosecutor W. E. Lee declared today, as authorities prepared to hold an inquest.

A female nurse of murder will be filed against Mrs. Georgia Ridgeway, thirty-eight, a nurse in Dr. Bowyer's office, who was arrested immediately after the murder was discovered. Prosecutor Hunt said Hunt has in his possession a long-bladed knife with which the crime is supposed to have been committed.

Authorities planned to further question Rose Hastings, office girl who told of an unidentified woman caller at the office to see the physician and of Mrs. Ridgeway ordering the visitor to leave.

JOHNNY APPLESEED DAY TO BE CELEBRATED

Chicago, April 16 (A.P.)—In celebration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of John Appleseed, who spent 49 years of his life planting apple seeds and making friends in the northwest territory in pioneer days, thirty-five civic and educational organizations will join tomorrow in an all-day planting ceremony in the forest preserves.

One of the trees will be planted by Mrs. Florence Kenyon Cook, Chicago representative of the Order of Pilgrims, who planted the first apple tree in the United States. A seedling of the Rosecrest tree was transplanted at the time of the 150th birthday. Wall when Johnny Appleseed was born, near Bunker Hill.

Legend says that his real name was Chapman. He was a Swedenborgian missionary and his seeds came from the second Brewster tree.

DR. DALLAS TO PREACH FAREWELL SERMONS

Dr. Dallas will preach his farewell sermons in the Carpenter church of the Pilgrims tomorrow and Sunday, it was announced. Next Friday at 11 a. m. he will preach to the pupils in the morning exercises in the school and on the following day will leave for New Hampshire where his ordination will take place on May 4.

At his last service, Friday will be his last before he leaves for New Hampshire it is expected that many will be present.

COLD COMPELS ESCAPED PRISONER TO GIVE UP

Saugus, Mass., April 16.—Joseph Nardi, 18, Revere, an escaping from the court jail, delivered himself up to Sheriff John W. Riley. He was cold, tired and nearly frozen. He had nothing to say.

Thomas Drake and Fred Quinton, both of Lynn, his companions in the escape were not with him. All are under sentence to State Prison.

CHARGE INSANE VETERANS ARE DEFRAUDED

Washington, April 16 (I.N.S.).—An investigation aiding in some to the people has resulted in the impeachment of Major H. Porter, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, it was announced today following the action of the House Veterans Committee in ordering a national investigation of the guardianship activities of the Veterans' Bureau.

There have been repeated charges that insane veterans of the World War have been victims of frauds by those appointed by the courts to conserve the interests of the former soldiers. There are 22,000 guardians.

For weeks charges have been made on the floor of the House concerning Roy Hendricks' desire for Major A. Peeler, Liberty commissioner who is the guardian of scores of insane veterans. Peeler has received from $100,000 to $150,000 in fees for handling the estates of veterans, according to charges by Rep. Barton (R.), of Tennessee, other congressmen

THREE HANGED IN ILLINOIS

Edwardsville, Ill., April 16 (A.P.)—Emil Fricker, former wealthy farmer convicted of instigating the murders of two successive husbands of his fair, maid with whom he was infatuated, paid the penalty today with his life.

Chicago, April 16 (A.P.)—Raymond Costello and Charles Hicks, negro strangers of women, were hanged together here today.

Costello smoked a cigarette while the straps were being adjusted and relinquished it reluctantly only when the white hood was placed over his head. He had nothing to say.

The negro prayed incessantly while the straps around and hood were being adjusted and until the death trap was sprung.

Costello was convicted for attacking and strangling 16 year old Madeline White. He reiterated his innocence today.

BOYS HUNTED AS P. O. THIEVES

Brockton, April 16.—Thieves, believed to be boys, who pried open boxes in the local postoffice and looted them of checks totaling $40,000 in value, are being sought today by postoffice inspectors, aided by the local police.

The strange angle to the thefts is that apparently the thieves profited not a whit from their robberies, for the checks, all of which have been stopped at the various banks, have never been presented for payment.

First word of the lootings came when local firms did not receive checks by mail and correspondence showed that these checks had been sent them. The investigation revealed that several of the boxes had been pried open by make-shift jimmies.

The investigators are confident that boys are responsible, for wiser criminals do not take such chances with the Federal laws, and also wiser criminals, if they had been searching for money, would have not taken the checks at all.

The looting could have been done easily enough for the boxes are open to the public and the clerks are in the rear of the building, so that the looters would have had ample time to do their work practically unobserved.

EX-SECRETARY WEEKS REGAINS HIS HEALTH

Washington, April 16.—John W. Weeks, former secretary of war, who with Mrs. Weeks, is at a hotel here, has entirely recovered from the digestive and heart trouble, which bothered him in California after a trip to Hawaii. He and Mrs. Weeks will probably remain here until June, when they will go to their Summer home at Lancaster, N. H.

POLICE SEIZE LIQUOR IN LODGE ROOM RAID

Marlboro, April 13.—Patrolmen John J. Slattery and H. T. Mitchell raided the lodge room on the fourth floor of the Warren block nearly opposite the police station here and seized 114 gallons of ale, contained in 1368 bottles, and 18 gallons of mash.

Directors of the firm have joined hands with employes' committee in perfecting plans for the fete.

Miss Veronica Fitzgerald is in charge of the publicity campaign. Following are members of the arrangements committee which planned the entertainment: Rose Mattfess, secretary; Mildred Beck, treasurer, Rose Rabinowitz, vice-chairman, Elizabeth White, Margaret Farrell, Helen Crayton, Helen Goldberg, Frances Kovey, Jane Zitter, Catherine Devlin, Sylvia Rose, Kate Seigal, Peggy Hart, Agnes Gately, Helen Walsh, Ida Deitch, Gladys Martin and Ena Poppeton.

"PHIL" CARLIN PRESENTED WITH LEATHER MEDAL

Phillips Carlin one of the popular sextet of WEAF announcers, recently received a letter from the nation's capital, Washington, signed by "60,001 Phil Carlin Fans." The letter was accompanied by a leather medal upon which was ascribed "Medal Leather Order of Eugene Field" and was given as a reward for Carlin's "outburst of soulful poetising."

Policeman Resigns

Patrolman Peter J. Doherty of Division 11, Dorchester, has resigned from the department. When he presented his resignation, charges were pending against him and Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson accepted the resignation.

Hold Boys as Looters

West Brookfield, April 16.—Chester C. Waterhouse, 17; Richard S. Keenan, 16, and Alfred B. Badeau, 15, all of Worcester, were arrested here by deputy sheriffs and State police on charges of looting several cottages on Lake Wickaboag.

FILENE TALKS TO SALESMEN

New York, April 16.—Hundreds of traveling salesmen heard Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, declare that mass production is the key to America's prosperity at the dinner of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

While there are dangers in the great consolidation of business and industry which are under way, he said, it was far better to adopt and support a system that can meet all needs that can possibly be foreseen than to permit the inefficiencies of life together with a minimum of luxuries that we enjoy under a system which never entirely legislated for needs that it is easier to control.

While the business man might at times be lawless and tend to abuse its power, he said he believed the pressure of competition as well as that of self-interest combined with an enlightened public opinion would compel the betterment of big business as an component of public service.

HARVARD GLEE CLUB SINGS THE RIG-VEDA

By MOSES SMITH.

The Harvard Glee Club gave its last concert of the year before an audience that almost filled Symphony Hall, the largest audience that the Glee Club has had in two years.

The concert was more successful than any of the preceding concerts of the club this year. The chorus sang much better, the quality of the voices of the various sections seemed to have improved, and the attacks were much more precise. When vigor was called for by the conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth it came forth more readily than at any time since he took over the baton as acting conductor.

There were many interesting points on the program, the performance of which impressed as the evening wore on. A series of choral hymns from the Rig Veda by Gustav Holst, something of a novelty for Boston, was performed with intonation that was often at fault, but the music, it is true, seemed very difficult to sing. All in all, though, the pieces were quite worth hearing.

The three closing numbers of the program, were well rendered. In the last one, "Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite," from Handel's "Samson," the performance was magnificent, recalling the Harvard Glee Club of several years ago.

Frieda Hempel, was the soloist, and she sang, in place of the varied collection originally announced, for the most part German songs. In them as in many others, she excels. Of the art of song she is at the top rank of exponents on the stage. There is not stress and strain in her singing, everything seems easy. And in everything to which she sets her gifts there is evident a singular charm.

The Letters of Queen Victoria

Revealing the Appealing Private Documents of the World's Greatest Woman Ruler

Bismarck, Germany's Iron Chancellor, who prevailed on King William I. of Prussia to suspend the Constitution

THERE is no more dramatic chapter in royal history than the battle of opposing wills waged between King William I. of Prussia and his son, Crown Prince Frederick William, who became Frederick III., Emperor of Germany.

It has remained for "The Letters of Queen Victoria," which the Boston Evening American is publishing daily by permission of King George of England, to portray the thrilling historic event from the inside—through the first person narrative of the leading actress in the drama.

The impassioned letter of "Vicky" (Crown Princess Victoria of Prussia) to her mother, Queen Victoria, printed by the American today, is beyond price in historic value. It tells of "Fritz" (Crown Prince Frederick William) rebelling when his father, at the behest of the Iron Chancellor Bismarck, suspends the constitution and takes away the liberty of the press in order to put through a great increase in the army over the violent opposition of Parliament.

"Prussia in Sad State"

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians.

WINDSOR CASTLE, 11th March, 1863.—Beloved Uncle.—Prussia is indeed in a sad state, and the King makes one quite miserable, for he is bent on self ruin. Sorry as one would be for that, that alone would not be a lasting misfortune; but if he ruins the position of his son and grandchildren, (who are also Queen Victoria's grandchildren) that would be dreadful. I will communicate your wise views to Vicky, who is wretched about everything and writes to me: "Affairs are in such a mess as never was; the King is amiable and kind as ever, and seems in happy unconsciousness of the real dangers which surround us, whilst nervously apprehensive of imaginary ones. But on the whole he is in the best of spirits, and gay, compared to all others!"

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell (Foreign Secretary).

WINDSOR CASTLE, 7th April, 1863.—The Queen doubts whether the tone of this dispatch is calculated to effect the object which Lord Russell has in view.

It seems too abrupt and peremptory in the commencement, to be unnecessarily offensive in its allusions to the past government of Poland by Russia and to imply the claim of a right of interference by the English Government, under the Treaty of Vienna, "in any way Her Majesty may think proper," a threat which Russia will well know there is no intention of acting upon.

This seems to the Queen to be too important a matter to be decided without previous consultation with the Cabinet, to which, when Lord Russell submits this draft, she wishes him also to communicate her remarks.

Daughter's Letter

The Crown Princess of Prussia to Queen Victoria.

SCHLOBITTEN, 8th June, 1863.—My Beloved Mama.—I told you on the 5th that Fritz had written twice to the King, once, warning him of the consequences that would ensue, if the constitution was falsely interpreted in order to take away the liberty of the press. The King did

FULLER FIGHTS GOODWIN PAY RISE

ATTACKED BY ADLOW IN HOUSE

Bill Is Passed, 85 to 67, and Now Goes to the Senate

On a bill to increase his salary from $5,000 to $6,000 annually, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin won a decisive victory in the Massachusetts House of Representatives today, over the vigorous opposition of the Republican leaders.

On a voice vote, the House passed the bill, 84 to 51. The opposition demanded a roll-call vote, and this time the majority in favor was increased still more, the vote being 85 to 67.

The bill now goes to the State Senate for action.

Representative Edwin [illegible] of Boston, known on Beacon Hill as the spokesman for Governor F. [illegible] in the House, delivered a fiery speech from the floor against passage of the measure.

Representative Adlow declared it was unfair to 15,000 other State employees to single out one man, Registrar Goodwin, for a salary increase granted in this special manner.

"All employes should get increases and then will get them, but in the regular way," he said, making members of the House sit up in surprise at this unexpected prophecy.

The Committee on State Administration originally reported favorably on the bill, but the House Ways and Means committee rejected the report and wrote "ought not to pass" against the bill on the House docket. The Ways and Means Committee is considered the "regular Republican organization" in the House.

BIRTH RULE KILLED BY WOMEN

Voters' League Defeats N. E. Plan on Control Education; Flapper Teachers Flayed

St. Louis, April 16 (A.P.).—Advocates of birth control suffered a setback at the convention of the National League of Women Voters which held its first general session today.

Delegates from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Vermont offered a resolution to include birth control study in the year's program of the child welfare committee, as a step toward birth control education and legislation, but the resolution was passed by the committee in executive session.

The general council of the League voted to change the bylaws to make the convention a biennial instead of an annual affair. The council also approved a report of the get-out-the-vote committee, recommending continuation of the League's campaign for increased registration and voting.

Dr. John A. H. Keith, principal of the Pennsylvania State Normal School, said the greatest need of the public schools was an increase in efficiency of the teachers.

"Half of the teachers we get in Pennsylvania," he said, "are young flappers just out of high school, and those that have a good understanding of the social needs of the high school student, they have had no experience in the home, and have not the responsibility of mind necessary in the classroom."

Catholic Probation Chief Agrees with Mr. Hearst on Crime Evil Solution

The accompanying letter was received by William Randolph Hearst from Edwin J. Cooley, chief of the Catholic Charities Probation Bureau. Mr. Cooley, who also is in charge of Cardinal Hayes' probation demonstration in the Court of General Sessions and is professor of Criminology at Fordham University, wrote:

April 8, 1926.

DEAR MR. HEARST—Amidst the prevailing hysteria and myopia surrounding the problem of the prevention and treatment of crime, and the punishment of the criminal, it is indeed enheartening to know that somewhere there exists an opinion as fundamentally sane and scientifically sound as that expressed by you in your editorial in the columns of the New York American and the New York Evening Journal.

His Eminence Cardinal Hayes, in the establishment of a scientific Probation Bureau at the Court of General Sessions over a year ago, supported by the Catholic charities of the Archdiocese of New York, [illegible] as far as possible the ruinous [illegible] is that the courts are concerned with the [illegible] many cases involving young offenders. [illegible] after an intelligent, accurate and [illegible] situation that any worthwhile plan of treatment and prevent could be evolved.

TO REDUCE, JOIN THAT POTATO STRIKE

Boston housewives are becoming sylph-like. Women who could never force themselves to undergo the rigors of reducing by diet, now find themselves growing more slender as their war against the potato barons grows apace.

Boston women are on a strike [illegible] against the soaring price of the [illegible] staple necessary to every dinner and they find that their ab[illegible] serve from potatoes is accomplishing miracles for their figures [illegible] than a dozen daily dozens.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

Where good tone quality is desired, there is a limit to the amount of volume obtainable with 90 volts of "B" battery on the audio amplifier.

TALKING MOVIE DEMONSTRATED

By SAMUEL CURTIS, JR.

At a gathering of over 1000 telephone engineers and members of the Boston City Club last night, General John J. Carty, vice-president of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, demonstrated the remarkable achievements of the Bell Laboratories in perfecting the talking movie.

The occasion was in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the telephone. Long distance telephone circuits were brought to the City Club, and connected with a large public address system. During the course of the evening, General Carty called the roll at the various repeater stations along the transcontinental route from Boston to San Francisco.

Both General Carty's words and the replies of the various operators were made audible to the guests present. Through a connection with the Edison broadcasting station WEEI, the whole affair was put on the air for the radio audience.

Perhaps the most impressive feature of the evening was when General Carty demonstrated a talking movie of Mr. Thomas Watson, who was Dr. Bell's assistant in the days of discovery of the telephone.

Owing to ill health, Mr. Watson was unable to attend the celebration last night, so in realization of this fact, he consented to address the meeting "by proxy" as it were,—through the medium of this talking movie.

Mr. Watson's voice, especially as it was heard over the radio, could not have been clearer had he actually been in front of the microphone. The synchronizing between his voice and his actions on the screen was perfect. Boston people sure know something when they will be able to go to a theatre and see this remarkable invention.

ALDA TO SING THROUGH WEEI

Mme. Frances Alda, the renowned soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company who will be heard through WEEI Sunday night, is an artist who needs no introduction to the American public or to the radio audience.

Mme. Alda appears in the WEAF's microphone in the series of Victor concerts broadcast by WTAF and a chain of stations in the early part of 1926 and won the hearts of radio fans throughout the East and Middle West.

Mme. Alda's versatility is amazing and is conspicuous in her many rôles, but of all the parts in which she has had leading soprano rôles would comprise a large portion of the music lover's debut in Rigoletto at the Paris Opera Comique in 1904, and since that time she has sung a great number of exacting rôles. As the wife of Caruso and the teacher and understudy of the Metropolitan Opera house, she has long taken a prominent place as a factor in American affairs. Her singularly fresh and sweet voice has won her countless friends both among opera lovers and upon the concert platform.

John Cortellino, the young Italian violinist, who will assist Mme. Alda, is a young artist of great promise. Though born of Italian parents, this violinist is an American by birth having been born in San Jose, California.

It is interesting to know that this musical youth began at the age of five by running down a mandolin and at the age of nine his friends and relatives thought his progress was no sufficient to signified for a child of such rare talent and that he should be given a violin. After receiving a violin, the boy developed so rapidly that he was received shortly thereafter as a pupil by the celebrated pedagogue, Traka, with whom he studied three years.

The first concert in New York city was a debut success, not only with the public but with the critics, who pronounced him a juvenile artist of the season. Violinist of the season have scored.

MANY MORNING PROGRAMS

It is interesting to observe the number of stations now broadcasting programs prior to 7 a.m. in practically every instance the programs are devoted to either physical exercises or morning devotion.

Each program set from a national radio program service is published herewith.

WJZ (454) New York—Lorraine Gilbert, contralto.

WEEI (400.2) Newark—McFadden's Gym Class.

WSM (282.7) Detroit—Exercises.

7:45 A. M.—WEAF (492) New York—Prayer service.

8:30 A. M.—WJAR (422.3) Cincinnati—Exercises, Morning Devotions.

From the foregoing it would appear that assistance to the belief that early rising and morning there are still many who prefer their beds and totally averse to getting up in the morning, and perhaps a few who overstep a might before going to work.

BIGGEST RADIO MEET COMING

The greatest gathering of radio interests in the history of the industry will take place at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., the week beginning May 10, under the auspices of the Radio Manufacturers' Association and associated radio trades organizations. Among the organizations which will be represented at the conferences extending over the week are:

Radio Manufacturers' Association.
National Electrical Supply Association.
Radio Writers' Association.
National Association of Broadcasters.
National Farm Radio Council.
Better Hearing Listeners' Association of America.
Radio Magazine Publishers' Association.
International Radio Week Committees.
And others.

HEAR NOTED SPEAKERS.

Joint sessions between all of the trade bodies will take place daily with noted speakers delivering addresses on subjects vital to the radio industry and to the radio listeners.

Among these speakers are:

Powel Crosley, Jr., chairman of the International Radio Week Committee.

Dr. E. W. White, member of the National Committee of the Relations of Electricity to Agriculture, on the "Magnitude of the Radio Farm Market and How to Reach It."

Henry W. Shaw, president of the National Radio Trade Association.

L. H. D. Weld, research director for Swift & Co., on "Problems and Methods of Distribution."

Aside from the organizations mentioned above, all local and district radio trade associations in the United States have been asked to send representatives to the conferences.

WILL STABILIZE INDUSTRY.

The meetings of the Manufacturers' Association are expected to have a tremendous effect in further stabilizing the industry.

"Radio has made as much progress in its five years of growth as the automotive industry made in twenty years," says Major Frost, president of the manufacturers' body. "Its greatest handicap has been to have to combat in the idea, even among the members of our trade, that radio is a seasonable business. The most interesting and the best broadcasting yet attempted is scheduled to take place in the next three or four months. The stations are now using high power and are unthickly sprinkled across the country that reception will be just about as good, even better, this Summer than it was last Winter."

CATHOLIC DIRECTOR AGREES WITH HEARST

In a study conducted by the Catholic Charities Probation Bureau of 2,496 offenders it was seen that two-thirds of them were between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five and that in almost every case alienation and religion had assumed regrettable proportions in their lives.

Broken and unsavory homes, poverty, evil neighborhood conditions had associates a lack of supervised recreation, economic inconsistency and physical or mental disabilities, individually or in combinations, were found in a startling number of cases.

Heredity sometimes had fortified the evil and delinquency was almost always found to be the expression of a fixed set of habits and not an isolated act. It was obvious, therefore, that the crime situation could be dealt with effectively only when approached on a social basis.

SOCIETY UNCONCERNED.

As with many of its other problems, society is unconcerned until the evil it has permitted to develop becomes a definite and personal danger. Then the belated rush to suppression is on, but society is unprepared with extermination, is obvious to the fact that the process of creation is going on as rapidly as ever. As we are dealing with the criminal of today we are inclined to forget that we have taken few preventive measures to save those who will be the criminals of tomorrow.

Lack of understanding of the offender himself and disregard of the individual and social causes which produce him will not help toward a solution. Advocacy of merely repressive measures, longer sentences and more frightful punishments never will reach the causes or cure the offender.

Such fact is clearly proven by thousands of years of experience. It is that severity alone, without individual understanding, does not and never will deter criminals and prevent crime.

EXPERIENCE DISREGARDED.

That crime flourished in the very shadow of the terrible public punishments meted out for divers offenses in past centuries is forgotten, and self-appointed social engineers and pseudo criminologists are setting up a clamor for the return of the old barbarities.

The New York State Legislature, acting on the Haines Committee's report, has recently passed measures calculated to double penalties for various crimes, and as always has been the case, the criminal is being regarded objectively and legislatively, rather than subjectively and socially.

Experience is taken, apparently, as an aid to future experiments in the solution of every problem except that of crime.

To prevent crime we must deal with delinquency, case by case. We must reach out toward the problems of growing children. We must give strenuous support to social agencies doing preventive work. We must provide more visiting teachers. We must be alert in the school system to detect the abnormal child and the subnormal child. We must provide more wholesome recreational outlets for youth, and we must have more trained probation officers.

EDUCATION NEEDED.

When the wisdom of crime study and subsequent community treatment of the evils causing and attendant upon the career of the criminal is thoroughly understood, we will have begun to progress in the right direction. When people at large realize that the future of our children lies in the hands of parents, educators and the social resources of the community, a new era in the treatment of crime will have arisen.

Religion and ethics formally will inculcate and develop the necessary moral stamina for the rejection of temptation and will provide guiding principles for a profitable and respectable life.

Education is needed, and in educating the public by your excellent editorials in the New York American and the New York Evening Journal you are making a noteworthy contribution to the solution of our crime problem.

Yours faithfully,
EDWIN J. COOLEY

BUTLER FACING NEW GRILL ON 'COERCION'

Court-Martial to Find Out If General "Browbeat" Young Officers Before Trial

Marine Base, San Diego, Cal., April 16 (A.P.)—A brigadier-general with two years' experience as chief of police today remains the central figure in an investigation involving the alleged "browbeating" of witnesses in a liquor case better known as the cocktail court-martial of Colonel Alexander S. Williams. He is Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, former director of public safety in Philadelphia and prosecuting witness in what was merely the trial of Colonel Williams on a charge of appearing intoxicated in the public rooms of a Coronado hotel on March 4.

AFTER ALL FACTS.

General Butler was called to the stand for questioning as to intimations of "browbeating" previously aired during the proceedings by officers of his command, and the spotlight was turned on what the general said to his officers just before some of them revised their written statements on what they saw at Coronado.

It was announced before adjournment that the military tribunal intended to "get all the facts in the matter" by calling additional witnesses today.

General Butler flatly denied having attempted to coerce his subordinates in supporting his charge that the colonel was "full," but freely admitted that he had called several officers on the carpet and told them they must "come clean or you'll all get into trouble."

"I told them," he testified, "they were a lot of boys running around in circles. 'Go out now and tell the truth, or you'll all get into trouble,'" he said he told them.

RICH YOUTH IN ELEVEN-STORY DEATH PLUNGE

Mystery Veils Act of Princeton Man Who Tells Mother He's "Stepping Out"

New York, April 16 (A.P.)—Abraham Leonard Beekman, a member of the firm of Paul & Beekman, stampers, Philadelphia, was killed today when he either jumped or fell from a window on the seventeenth floor of the Hotel Rockefeller, in West Fifty-first street.

Beekman, who was thirty years old and a descendant of a prominent New York family, had been in ill health from a nervous disorder. His parents lived with him at the hotel. He was a graduate of Princeton of the class of 1918 and was unmarried.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Beekman, the young man's parents, lived in a suite on the 10th floor of the hotel and young Beekman lived on the 11th floor with A. B. Carver of Yonkers, who had been on of his classmates at Princeton.

Beekman telephoned over the house line to his mother this morning that he was "going to step out for a little while," and suggested that she come up and see him. Worried by the summons, Mrs. Beekman hurried to her son's apartment and found him in apparently good spirits. Carver had left for the day.

The son greeted his mother cheerfully and then went into the bathroom, locking the door after him. A moment later Mrs. Beekman heard a scream from the courtyard below. Running to a window she looked out to see the body of her son seven stories beneath her.

WE SPEED UP FREIGHT, B. & M. AGENTS SAY

The annual conference of Boston and Maine representatives in distant points in the country, is being conducted at the North Station. Quick despatch of freight trains from points outside of New England to industrial centres in the northeastern States is one of the principal matters being discussed.

B. & M. AGENTS CONFER IN BOSTON

Boston & Maine agencies in Chicago, Memphis, Detroit, Kansas City, New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo and Troy are represented at the meeting. Representatives from the leading New England cities also are present.

The conference is held annually for the purpose of advancing the interest of the railroad in distant sections of the country.

The improvement effected by the Boston & Maine in speeding up of freight train schedules between the Hudson River gateways and New England industrial centres was described by Frank F. Farrar, general freight agent.

A plan by which the railroad operators and traffic officials co-operate to serve shippers and consignees by specimen tracing of rejected shipments daily, was explained by P. J. Mulaney, assistant general freight agent. The plan reveals any possible causes of delay before they become chronic. Mr Mulaney said

DORCHESTER MAN HELD FOR THEFT OF BONDS

Frank L. Noonan of No. 147 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester, was arrested by Inspector Farrell and arraigned in the Suffolk County Superior court on a secret indictment returned against him on a charge of the larceny of ten $1,000 Liberty Bonds from the National Rockland Bank in May 1918.

Noonan was unable to furnish $10,000 bail which was ordered by the court, and was committed to the Charles Street Jail to await trial.

"Most delicious!" he said.
"And I made it in five minutes," she replied.
(Sounds like a miracle to many Women)

WHAT sounds like a miracle to many women is the fact that the most delicious mayonnaise you ever tasted can be made with Mazola in five minutes.

Just as a test, why not take the Mazola you have in the pantry (or you can phone your grocer for a can) and follow this recipe. It will surprise you to learn how easy it is to make mayonnaise.

1 cup Mazola — ½ teaspoon White Pepper
1 Egg Yolk — ½ teaspoon Paprika
½ teaspoon Sugar — 2 tablespoons Lemon Juice or 1 tablespoon Vinegar
½ teaspoon Salt

Beat egg yolk thoroughly and add Mazola one teaspoon at a time until you have a firm creamy mixture, after which Mazola may be added more rapidly, then add your seasoning and lastly the lemon juice or vinegar, beating all well together.

AND, of course, you know that home-made mayonnaise is good because you know the eggs in it are fresh.

Another pleasant surprise will be your discovery that Mazola blends so readily with the other ingredients and the finished mayonnaise does not separate—though you may keep it for days.

For other salad dressings, especially French Dressing, compare Mazola with the finest imported oils that may cost twice as much. You will no longer wonder why Mazola is America's most popular salad oil.

... is no better satisfaction than spending money for a "fool" hobby—a hobby that is peculiarly and personally your own. Whether you have a weak spot for autographs or Sandwich glass, rare stamps or Currier and Ives prints, Chippendale furniture or Willard clocks, indulge it for the joy it gives you, and the gentle envy it stirs among your friends. And indulge it cheerfully, knowing that a First National savings account, started with $5, has helped you to build a little collection that you're proud of. That collection really depends on how soon you step into a First National Savings office.

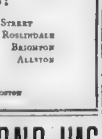
HAMMOND HAS NEW HEALTH SYSTEM

By FRANK H. SIMONDS, Financial Editor.

John Hays Hammond, claimed by many to be the richest man in America, has his own ideas on the subject of how to live long and well. He has a new system for preserving health. This noted mining engineer and man of stirring affairs is now living, he feels sure, at 71. He says: "I need no doctor, have given up tobacco and drink and I expect when I please. If I feel like staying up late, I do so. I am in splendid health now, and expect to live to be a hundred."



J. H. Hammond

The Old State Street Trader turned decidedly bearish about three days before the big break and has never changed his position since then. During the latest brief rally he watched the tape disgustedly. "Look at the poor idiots of floor traders!" he exclaimed. "There they are bidding against one another cruelly for stocks that will all be cheaper later on!"

On March 31 in this column we stated: "Traders in the stock market just at this time is unlikely to go far, despite the sharp upending for Friday [April 2]." The very subsequent of this drop has stopped a great many "longs" from getting out of the market, and it is likely many will seize upon any rally to let go of a part or all of their holdings. This would have the effect of offsetting short covering by bull bears and it is also likely that the more determined of the bruin element would take advantage of a rally to increase short lines. The decline to speculate on the bull side has been troubled by fear in a large degree and it is there the ability to speculate at all has been wiped out.

Our opinion was ventured in the [illegible] advices and we do not present it again [illegible] attention to its accuracy [illegible] but [illegible] that the same conditions appear [illegible] period.

I heard Major Harry Lawrence Walker, president of the Director of United States, last week last evening before the Traffic Club of New England at the Copley-Plaza. He made a record attendance of members that filled the big dining hall. The major described United Fruit Company steamship service around the Caribbean" very well [illegible] the [illegible] was interesting declaration made by Major Walker was that a famine to have in Cuba in a manner in the world [illegible] the great hop movement in [illegible] connection.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Philadelphia gives you the impression that it is taking on a new lease of life. Everywhere are signs of improvement, progress, expansion. Not only in the city proper, but developments of tremendous magnitude are going on in the heart of this fairtime metropolis.

Think of it! The Pennsylvania Railroad alone is busy on a new program calling for the expenditure of more than $40,000,000. This program will involve the removal of many acres of vastly valuable city land, the construction of wonderful new thoroughfares, the widening of various vital streets and other improvements which mean the expenditure of millions in themselves and the erection of many colossal new offices and other buildings running into incalculable sums.

Briefly, the Pennsylvania Railroad is to give Philadelphia what will be the most modern station in the world.

This great structure will take the place of the awkward, outgrown Broad street station, in its day the finest central passenger station in this or any other country. But that was half a century ago.

The magnitude of the improvements now being launched by the Pennsylvania in Philadelphia raises the imagination. Asked about the program, General W. W. Atterbury, president of the road, said:

"Broad street station is overtaxed. Its operation as a main terminal is rendered especially difficult by the fact that it is a stub-end and not a through station. It is proposed to locate the new station on the tract bounded by Market street, Arch street, 30th street and the west bank of the Schuylkill River. We plan to build the station with 18 terminal tracks, each having 1,500-foot platforms for through trains, in addition to eight tracks and platforms for handling suburban traffic—a total of 26 tracks altogether.

"Broad street station, with the [illegible] on which it is to be retained and [illegible] probably reconstructed, will be completely torn down and eliminated, as will also the 'Chinese wall' in their place a station entirely under ground, as a central station for suburban trains, is to be constructed between 15th and 17th streets and just north of Market and Broad street stations. We propose to bring the suburban trains into the underground station by means of a new bridge across the Schuylkill River south of Arch street, leading into a proposed subway of four or more tracks beginning between 20th and 21st streets and running beneath the bed of the present Filbert street.

"The result will be to eliminate entirely the operation of steam locomotives into the center of the city from West Philadelphia. It will, of course, be necessary for us to complete the electrification of our passenger lines throughout the Philadelphia suburban zone. Ultimately it is possible that we may electrify completely to New York."

A new central boulevard, Pennsylvania boulevard, of great width, will be built from the end of the parkway at City Hall to the river front at the new station of the Schuylkill. "It will without question," declared General Atterbury, "present the most magnificent opportunity which has ever been opened up in Philadelphia for architectural treatment and development."

Yes, Philadelphia is bursting into new life.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

Each debenture will have attached thereto, upon original issue, a stock purchase warrant detachable on and after October 1, 1926, evidencing the right of the holder thereof to purchase (common) shares of the company, in the ratio of 5 shares for each $1,000 principal amount of debentures, at the price of $55 per share, at any time on or before April 1, 1931.

A minimum sinking fund of $500,000 per annum, payable semi-annually, will be provided, first payment on or before October 1, 1926, to purchase debentures at not exceeding 101 and interest, or, if not so obtainable, to redeem debentures by lot at 104 and interest.

BUSINESS

Loew's Incorporated is one of the largest factors in each of the three divisions of the motion picture industry; namely, production, distribution and exhibition of films. It is the outgrowth of the amusement enterprises which had been owned and successfully operated by Marcus Loew and associates since 1905. The present holding company, formed in 1919, has shown substantial net profits in each year since organization. Through subsidiary companies, Loew's Incorporated owns, leases or directs a chain of 105 theatres in the United States and foreign countries. The number of cash admissions to the company's theatres during the year 1925 was 75,570,840. The company's policy of theatre operation has been the construction or acquisition of theatres of large seating capacity centrally located in the principal cities of the United States.

Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, the entire common stock of which is owned by Loew's Incorporated, enjoys a leading position among the world's motion picture producing companies and has built up a high reputation for the popularity and artistry of its productions. Its photoplays are known to the public as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions, the most outstanding of the current pictures being "The Big Parade," "Ben Hur," "La Boheme," and "The Merry Widow."

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The debentures comprise the company's total funded debt. Proceeds of their sale will be used as follows: $2,000,000 to take over the secured loan to U. F. A. of Germany made in consideration of a contract for the distribution and exhibition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer films in Germany; $3,000,000 to increase working capital through liquidation of total bank loans; the balance for investment in new theatre enterprises and for other corporate purposes.

INCOME

For the three years ended August 31, 1925, and the current fiscal year to January 17, 1926, results of operations of Loew's Incorporated and wholly-owned subsidiaries, plus dividends received from other subsidiaries and affiliated companies, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., have been as follows:

	Years ended August 31			Sept. 1, 1925 to Jan. 17, 1926
	1923	1924	1925
Net income available for interest*	$3,027,456	$4,203,486	$5,117,117	$3,770,233
Less: Interest on subsidiaries' debt	345,326	402,453	491,783	219,389
Dividends on subsidiaries' preferred stock		78,174	310,186	103,385
Net income applicable to other interest	$2,682,130	$3,722,859	$5,315,148	$3,447,459
Maximum debenture interest	900,000	900,000	900,000	346,154

*Being net income after depreciation, but before interest charges, Federal income taxes, and extraordinary charges made of $1,062,515 to Profit and Loss.

Such net income applicable to other interest for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1925, was 5.9 times maximum annual interest charges of $900,000 on the debentures, and for the total period shown above the average annual rate of such net income was more than 4.6 times such charges. The above statement does not give effect to benefits expected to result from use of additional capital obtained through this financing.

GUARANTY

The debentures will be guaranteed, as to principal, interest and sinking fund, by M-G-M Company, Inc. (a Corporation to be formed under the foregoing or some other name to which all the Common Stock of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and per cent of the preferred stock of said Corporation will be transferred by Loew's Incorporated and / or by Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, to the end that at least the quotation represented by the common stock of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, or the proceeds thereof, shall continue to be directly or indirectly behind these debentures. Loew's Incorporated reserves the right, in the event of such guaranty by M-G-M Company, Inc., to distribute the shares of M-G-M Company, Inc. to the stockholders of Loew's Incorporated. The equity represented by the common stock of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation is included in the consolidated balance sheet of Loew's Incorporated and wholly-owned subsidiaries as of January 17, 1926, at $7,328,505. Of the aggregate net income applicable to other interest, as shown under "income" above, for the period from September 1, 1922 to January 17, 1926, about 38% was contributed by Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

EQUITY

The equity for the debentures is represented by 1,050,780 (common) shares having a current market value on the New York Stock Exchange of approximately $36 per share, or a total of over $38,000,000. During 1925 the shares sold as high as $44.75 per share.

The company has agreed to make application in due course to list the debentures on the New York Stock Exchange

We offer these debentures for delivery if, when and as issued and accepted by us, subject to the approval of legal matters by our counsel. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about April 28, 1926, in the form of interim receipts of Dillon, Read & Co.

MARY HERRICK FAVORS CHILD AID BILL

Anti-Vivisectionist Says Measure Will Promote Public Welfare

Miss Mary Herrick of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society today informed House bill 508, which provides Federal aid to dependent children in the District of Columbia, that the measure passed by the House and now before the United States Senate, is another step to be attained by government schools to care for its children in its own homes.

"A measure that will make it possible for needy children to remain in their homes under the care and guidance of their mothers and women friends can attend a and we face of children in the family atmosphere is decidedly progressive," said Miss Herrick.

"Mothers and children in such circumstances deserve the tenderest consideration. The District of Columbia bill would keep intact the family ties and influence which are most essential to minor children and to the happiness and welfare of unfortunate mothers. It would be well for Congress to grant the District of Columbia a law similar to that now in force in nearly two-score of the other states."

WHIST WILL AID IRISH MISSION IN CHINA

Plans Complete for Big Ball April 28 to Raise Fr. Griffin Memorial Fund

By JAMES WALSH.

Members of the Ladies of St. Patrick Ladies Association in conjunction with the Cork Men's Association have arranged what during past years has been known as the Whist Party, which will be given in the Hotel Statler ballroom on the evening of April 28. The proceeds will be given to the Rev. Thomas O'Brien, of Cork, who is in this country in behalf of the mission in China which he conducts. The committee in charge of the arrangements, which is headed by Mrs. Thomas F. Big Jones, the general chairman, announced that the affair will be held on May 20.

Plans for the monster reception and ball in aid of the Father Griffin Memorial, to be given under the auspices of the County Galway Association in East Armory on Tuesday evening, April 13, are practically completed. All the local organizations of the part of the State, as well as the Vasearh nette Lithuanian Order of Foresters, are co-operating with the county Galway Association.

Much prominent in the affairs of the Irish State are all will be there as well as the officers and members of all the Irish organizations of the State. Tickets of the late Father Michael Griffin, who was killed from his home in Galway on a recent visit, are meeting with the best sale that will appeal to everybody. His devotion to duty brought about his murder. A band of assassins in ambush shot the priest while he was on the way to the bedside of the supposed dying man. It is proposed to erect a memorial church in Father Griffin's home in Galway.

The Rev. Thomas M. Naughton who has been in the service for some time in the interest of the memorial is a member of the committee. Theodore A. Glynn, former Representative, is the chairman. James Gahan is the secretary. The other members of the committee are Jeremiah new J. Fahey, P. J. Mrs. Meade, Joseph P. Maguire, Michael Donovan, Mrs. Anna E. Foley, Miss Margaret Keohane, Miss Margaret O'Malley, Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. McCarthy, Miss Nellie M. Sweeney, Miss Anna Coll, Miss Jennie Brown, Miss Delia Cummings, Joseph P. Mahon, Daniel F. Mahoney, James Dennis, Joseph P. Hagar, John McDevitt, John W. Lowney, Michael J. Walsh, Michael J. O'Brien, John Graham, James Maguire, James P. Sweeney, James Lowney, John J. Mckernan, Thomas Jerry, Joseph J. Fennegan, Joseph Farrell, F. McGrade, William J. Grenier, Frank Shaw, Jack M. Tarrant, Edward Murray, James J. Phelan, John Lancaster, John Nash, Louis A. Mooney, J. Aiken, Patrick J. Murphy, James J. Burke, Patrick J. Larkin, John W. Kane, Joseph Kerr, Louis A. Haggett, John J. Kelly, Thomas Carey, Michael J. Dullea, Richard Tucker, Michael F. Coy, John J. Gilmore, John J. Curley, Patrick C. Flaherty, John Bowes, Timothy J. Powers, John H. Quigley and Patrick J. Cummings.

The various divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians together with the three women's auxiliaries of that organization in Lowell will receive Holy Communion at St. Mary's Church in that city next Sunday at 9 o'clock. A communion breakfast will follow in Hibernian Hall, Charlestown. Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell will be the principal speaker. The following committee is in charge:

John J. Mahoney, chairman; P. J. Monahan, Miss Mary Kelly, Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, Mrs. Hannah O'Connor, Jeremiah J. Crowley, Bartholomew J. Fahey, Dennis J. Lyons, Patrick H. Cyr, Patrick J. Hart and John J. Gilmore.

A solemn requiem mass for deceased members of the Holy Name Benevolent Association will be said at St. Mary's Church in Lowell, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Neil A. Cronin, administrator of the cathedral, will be the celebrant. Officers members and friends of the association will assemble at 9:45 a.m. in front of the cathedral and will march in procession into the church.

LEWIS SIGNS TO MEET WINNER OF M'GUIRE-MONDT BOUT

STRANGLER RETURNS TO CHICAGO

Champion Agrees to Fight the Victor of Tuohey Feature In Hub April 29

By JACK CONWAY

Strangler Lewis today signed a contract with Promoter Paul Bowser to wrestle the winner of the Ned McGuire-Toots Mondt bout in this city on April 29.

McGuire and Mondt will top the monster wrestling carnival which will be held at the George Tuohey testimonial at the Boston Arena on next Wednesday night.

Lewis left for Chicago today after signing with Bowser. The Strangler did not appear any the worse for wear after his victory in straight falls over Wayne (Big) Munn at the Arena.

Strangler Lewis gave the best exhibition of wrestling he has ever put up in a Boston ring when he defeated Wayne (Big) Munn in straight falls at a show staged at the Boston Arena under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Lewis scored with the first fall by means of a headlock in 59 minutes. He secured the second fall in 18 minutes, employing a head and hip lock to pin Munn's shoulders to the canvas.

The big thrill of the match came just before Lewis counted with the first fall. Munn was in the midst of a wild surge. He had weakened the Strangler by cracking him at the base of the brain with the full power of his hands and arms.

Munn finally forced Lewis back into a neutral corner and clamped on his famous crotch hold. He made a mighty effort to lift Lewis off his feet, but Ed set himself firmly and upset Munn's plans.

There was an uproar from the crowd over the act of the referee in forcing Munn to step back from the ropes even tho he had Lewis in distress.

When the man resumed wrestling, Lewis went about his work like a master and didn't have any trouble in scoring with the second fall.

Ed McGuire, Irish heavyweight, conquered Big Bill Beth, Western heavyweight, in 51 minutes. He performed this feat with an inside crotch hold and body lift.

George Tuohey, for whom a monster testimonial will be staged at the Arena on next Wednesday night, was introduced and made a short speech.

Who Is This Player?

Are you interested in the Boston Evening American Baseball Contest? It is open to everyone willing to devote a few moments effort to identifying the photographs of baseball players published daily in the Boston Evening American.

Today the third photo is published of one of the most popular athletes in the National pastime and a ball player who won the respect of all fans who have followed the major leagues. Who is this player?

Already numerous letters have arrived in the Contest Editors hands with the answers to the first two ball players. These letters and answers do not count, as the rule stipulates that the contestants hold the answers until all twenty players pictured have appeared.

Who is this player and what team does he play for?

The four fans who identify the twenty pictures which will constitute the contest will receive season passes. Two will be to Fenway Park, the home of the Red Sox, and two more for Braves Field. The season ticket will admit the winners to all the remaining games of the 1926 season.

Then there will be fifteen passes to the Red Sox park and a like number to Braves Field.

Do not send in answers until the finish of the contest. At the conclusion you will be asked to write a letter, limited to 100 words, telling which of the players used was your favorite and why.

In the event of ties all ties will receive equal consideration.

All answers including the 100-word letter must be in the hands of the Baseball Contest Editor by 12 p. m. May 2. Winners will be announced on May 13.

Print name of player so it can be read plainly.

MEDFORD RULES AS FAVORITE OVER RIVALS

By EDDIE DONDERO

The continuation of diamond war fare by schoolboy participants will be very much in evidence tomorrow

Most week end engagements will act as preliminaries to the Patriotic Day card which cannot be overshadowed. The Medford-B. C. High fray at the Fulton street stadium tomorrow resembles a big league joust as the game is the first of a crucial series.

"While conditioning we looked as mild as the month of May," said Coach Roberts today. Recovering from a batting slump they achieved something well worth while in the season's opener with a lop-sided victory over Trade School.

Unless some flagiet hurler of no hit, no run fame halts the National Pastimers who have just recovered from a trance, Medford will win Johnny Conners, a much touted pitching mainstay, will do the hurling against the visitors.

Al e Dolphino's tribe at Newton High appears to be exactly like that which represented Somerville a year ago burning up the Suburban League. The Garden City team will oppose Lawrence before playing their first league contest on the holiday.

Waltham High upset Belmont recently which proves that Jack Leary has another first class outfit in the Watch City. They will have for their opponents on Saturday the Lynn General Electric team.

The annual English-Groton clash is of great importance and it might be interesting to note that for the first time in several years the Warren Avenue ball hawks will enter the combat as favorites. Coach Leo Daley and his revised line-up are due to win the championship in the High circuit.

Somerville High with its Capt. "Red" Aylesbury and three others on the ineligible list will remain idle Saturday, moving into action against Medford on Monday.

3-MILE RUN FEATURES ROXBURY HOLIDAY CARD

One of the outstanding athletic events of the Patriots Day program in the Roxbury district will be a three mile novice road race held under the auspices of the Norfolk Young Men's Association and with the sanction of the N. E. A. A. U.

The course starting in front of the Norfolk House will continue along Centre street, Columbus avenue, through Eggleston square to Walnut avenue, to Warren street, to Cliff street, to Dudley, finishing at the Norfolk House.

The race will start at 10 a. m., immediately following the patriotic exercises commemorating the William Dawes ride to Lexington.

Entries close this evening with F. X. McLaughlin, manager of the race or with John J. Galvinsky, clerk of the course.

DRAKE RELAY ENTRY LIST IS SWELLING

Des Moines, Ia., April 16 (A.P.)—As time for the Drake relays draws near, the entry list is swelling. Entries are received almost by the score daily. Those announced today included Ohio State with 32 track and field stars. Another Buckeye entry was Ohio Wesleyan. The Delaware O., school will send eight men.

Iowa State College of Ames led the list in the number of entries with 40 cyclone men on its list. Coach Harry Gill of the University of Illinois sent reservations for 30 athletes, including "Chick" Warner, hurdle hopping artist.

The meet will be held April 23 and 24.

MIDDLEBURY WILL PLAY AT SPRINGFIELD

Middlebury, Vt., April 16.—The Middlebury baseball team will leave here on Sunday morning for Springfield, where they will put in a three-day period of intensive training previous to the first game on Thursday with Springfield College.

Porter Field is not yet in playing condition, with the result that the squad has been unable to play on anything but a makeshift diamond as yet.

Through the courtesy of the Springfield College and the city of Springfield, the Blue and White team will be able to use one of the many excellent diamonds in that city in getting in shape for the early season games.

Coach Klevenow will take fifteen men on the trip and workouts will be held twice daily before the first game. The pitching problem is still a source of worry to Klevenow and he will take five pitchers with him to show their stuff.

The team that will face Springfield, will in all probability, be a practically new one, as Captain Devotny is the only veteran left in the outfield and Hamilton is the only letter man in the infield. The squad will be cut to twenty on Saturday and this roster will be carried throughout the season.

After the Springfield game the Black Panther will go to Middletown to meet Wesleyan and on Saturday will play Amherst at Amherst, both of these being newcomers on the Middlebury schedule.

McGraw Optimistic Over Twirling Staff

New York, April 16 (I.N.S.)—Being a professional optimist at heart, John McGraw recently opened his mouth and allowed as how the 1926 Giants will have their best pitching staff since the mellow, old championship days of 1905.

He made the observation while rubbing mental hands of great glee over the transaction that resulted in Jimmy Ring coming to the Polo Grounds, and the writer is inclined to believe that John spoke first and thought afterward, or else was merely talking to hear his teeth rattle.

Ring will top off a pitching staff embracing Kent Greenfield, Fred Fitzsimmons, Virgil Barnes, Art Nehf, Hugh McQuillan and a few casual others. If Greenfield and Fitzsimmons pay dividends on their 1925 promise, it will be better than any pitching staff McGraw has had since the war.

If they do not, it will be worse Nehf is almost through and McQuillan is as unreliable as an elderly pair of suspenders. McGraw may be placing too much faith in Greenfield and Fitzsimmons. We have had one-year pitchers before.

However, granting that they all come through, there is little doubt that the 1926 staff will click with reasonable adequacy.

PIRATES RELEASE PAIR OF ROOKIE HURLERS

Pittsburgh, April 16.—The Pittsburgh Pirates have released Alvin Crowder and Edward Brower, recruit pitchers. Crowder was sent back to the Birmingham club of the Southern Association, while Brower, released unconditionally

McGuire, Mondt on Tuohey Card

"Toots" Mondt, the rugged Colorado grappler, and Ned McGuire, the "Irish Whirlwind," have been matched to meet to a positive finish, best two falls out of three, as the principal battle at the Tuohey carnival at the Arena next Wednesday night. The winner will receive 65 and the loser 35 per cent. of the purse, with the promise that the winner will meet "Strangler" Lewis at a later date.

The matching of these two rugged hetlers indicates the class of the program, and as they have never met the affair will mean a contest that will be filled with rapid fire action from the first tap of the gong until the last fall is scored.

This event will be one of the three finish matches that will feature the carnival, the others being in the making and will probably be completed today.

In addition there will be a number of exhibition bouts and other novelties, the committeel ntending to make the testimonial one of the finest things of its kind ever given in Boston.

They have established downtown offices at No. 833 Washington street, Room 202, for the accommodation of the fans and where all information may be obtained.

MACK ROOKIE ACCOUNTS FOR SENATORS

Oy Williams, pinch-hitting in the ninth with a runner parking on every base, smacked his second homer of the season, enabling the Phenomenal Phillies to again take the Braves over the rapids 5 to 4, and retain the league leadership. Harry Risonda, Boston third-baseman, broke his left leg sliding home.

The Athletics turned on the Senators like a snapping turtle, pounding out a 9 to 3 victory, while Pate, Connie Mack's star rookie, held the Champions to two hits in seven innings. Washington made five errors.

Chicago continued to set the pace in the American League by lacing the Browns again, 11 to 4, driving Zachary to the showers. Helpless before Blankenship's pitching in seven of the nine innings, Sisler's sluggers folded up like a Paris hat in a shower.

Bouts Last Night

Lillian Copeland Puts Shot to New World's Mark

LOS ANGELES, April 16 (A.P.)—A new world's record for the women's eight-pound shot was established by Lillian Copeland of the University of Southern California here yesterday, when she hurled the iron ball 38 feet 8 inches, surpassing by 1 foot 5¼ inches the mark held by Lucille Godbold of Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.

Barbato to Race in Legion Grind

Already more than fifty entries have been received for the Jamaica Plain Legion 10-mile handicap road race, which will be conducted in that suburb on Patriots' Day, commencing at 10 a. m. The Dorchester, St. Alphonsus, Stoughton and Cathedral Athletic Clubs have entered several luminaries.

Gus Barbato, who successfully represented the Stoughton Civic Club, recently by winning the Cathedral race, hopes to repeat the performance on the holiday. Bernard Starr, James Farrell, Fred Lloyd, Jimmy Buckley and Frank Rischinger are the other probable winners.

Sitting pretty and no mistake!

LIKE the chap in the song, I'm sitting on top of the world. And it's not a bad world when you look at it from all sides. I've hit some rough spots, but managed to keep my seat. I want to let it be known that the road has been a heap smoother since I discovered Prince Albert. Here is tobacco!

My old jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert and I go along just singin' a song from morning to midnight. Whenever I get to feeling low, I take out my pipe, tamp a load of good old P. A. into the muzzle and light up. Old Man Trouble takes French leave the minute that wonderful smoke starts up the stem.

Prince Albert is friendly in spirit and friendly in fact. It never bites my tongue or parches my throat. They tell me the Prince Albert process fixed that for me and millions like me. I only know that P. A. is cool and satisfying as spring-water on a hot afternoon and that it suits me to a T.

You're welcome to this leaf out of my book. If you're not smoking P. A., you're not getting full enjoyment out of your pipe. Just get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert. Load up your old jimmy-pipe and light up. Nothing complicated about that, is there? Well, that's my formula. It always works for me.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Sox and Yankees Have Totaled 38 Runs in the Two Games Played

By NICK FLATLEY

Paul Zahniser will try to prove today that the lively ball hasn't been switched into the American League. Paul is nominated to push the theory against the Yankees and Mar Pohl thinks he can stop the walloping invaders if enough sunshine is spread around to make normal batted ball possible.

Nick Flatley

The removal of the rabbit ball and its attendant home runs, was supposed to make the season of close games and to tie the pitching duels of past years. That is were to have the edge once more, and let the batters sink back into obscurity.

It looked like a popular reform, but the fans are beginning to wonder what it all means. The Red Sox and Yankees have manufactured thirty-eight runs in two ball games, being fifty-fifty in the matter. Each having won a game it's a very even series thus far.

Holding the seventy-two set by the Yanks is quite a feat for a club that's trying to dig out of the cellar. The Fenways weren't classed as sluggers, but they have managed to produce a kick that indicates a lot of excitement in the course of a busy season.

Any team that sets out with short slugging wide open is handicapped heavily from the blowoff. The Red Sox have been waiting for relief. Have one remarkable day, during the wait and should go to it with a whoop impetus now that help has arrived.

FITZSIMMONS GETS STILL MORE TIME

New York, April 16 (A.P.)—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City promoter, who signed the heavyweight boxing champion, Jack Dempsey, and the negro challenger, Harry Wills, for a bout this year, has a little more time, although the day of grace has passed.

This was made known yesterday by Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, who said he would wait until Monday for Fitzsimmons to act before considering an offer from Jimmy Dwyer, New York promoter, of Wills against Gene Tunney at the Polo Grounds here. Tunney's manager is reported to have agreed to terms.

Meanwhile, Tex Rickard who plans a Gene Tunney and Dempsey match, is on his way into the West. He may sign Dempsey for a return match, although the New York Athletic Commission in a statement has that only a Wills-Dempsey contest will be permitted in that area. Rickard still has both Dempsey Acres in Jersey City for the event, which would have to be a promotion affair.

$100,000 Race Horse Killed

Hogside, Scotland, April 16 (A.P.) Sergeant Murphy, the steeplechaser owned by Stephen Sanford, which won the Grand National in 1923, broke a hind leg in the West Lancashire Handicap here today and was destroyed.

Mr. Sanford, whose home is at Amsterdam, N. Y., is said to have paid $10,000 for Sergeant Murphy, a value which the owner boosted to $100,000 after his horse had won the National.

Mr. Sanford was a student at Cambridge University when he bought Sergeant Murphy solely for the purpose of putting him into the hunting field. The sergeant started his career as a hunter in Ireland and was sold to a Dublin dealer for the price of $1,000. Subsequently he was bought by a London lorddom of her and then by Hyams stable at Epsom.

Sergeant Murphy's victory in 1923 was over a field of twenty-eight horses, only seven of which finished. The race was worth about $50,000 and the trophy cup, which was presented to Mr. Sanford with the personal congratulations of the King of England and the Prince of Wales.

Sergeant Murphy, which was sixteen years old, was the first American owned horse to win the four years to win first honors at the Great National Steeplechase. He was thirteen years old at the time and was quoted at odds of 100 to 6

Riconda's Injury Is Hard Blow to Braves

Philadelphia, April 16.—Win, lose or draw, the Boston Braves will be the happiest crowd of ball tossers in entire league when they shake the dust of this village from their feet this evening.

Three days ago, the Bannymen came here to open the National League season. The lineup on paper had class written all over it and the club was rated as a possible pennant contender.

Today, Harry Riconda, regular third baseman of the visitors, is confined to a bed in a local hospital with a broken leg suffered in practice, a catcher and the club is in last place in the standing with three defeats and no victories to their credit.

The Philly jinx which resulted in the Braves losing 16 out of 22 games to the Fleischmeiers last season now seems determined to add injuries to defeats and the Bay Staters will consider themselves lucky if they manage to get out of town without losing nothing worse than another bad taste on to them before they get it.

The misfortune which has befallen Riconda is a hard blow to the morale of the Boston players. They realize that the loss of Riconda for a period of at least two weeks is a tough blow, but they are determined to fight all the harder.

Once out of sight of this city they are confident that they will get going and before the season is over they are not lack that one afternoon in the Quaker Town for the past few seasons.

The Braves were just beginning to believe they had triumphed over the local hoodoo when the hardest blow of all fell.

The Phils scored a run in the second and the Braves came right back in the third and tied it up, in their half of the same inning, the Fletcherites added another tally, taking the lead, but the Braves again knotted the count in the sixth.

With one down in the eighth Riconda singled and Banny's one base hit sent him around to third and the visitors had visions of chalking up their initial win of the season.

Taylor, next up, then rolled to Knight, the Philly pitcher, and Riconda started for the plate. Knight got the ball home to Wilson in plenty of time for the latter to block the route. Seeing his path cocked Riconda tried to hook the catcher and his leg collided with Wilson's plight and the runner fell back writhing in agony.

He was carried off the field by his mates and an examination on the bench showed that his shin bone had been broken.

Even after this misfortune, the Braves managed to score in the inning and take the lead. Mogridge popped up a fly which Sand missed and Bancy scored.

Then the jinx started all over again. Leach put the Phils in front with a homer which scored Sand in front of him and although the Braves again tied it up in the ninth,

15 Knockdowns Set Record in Yonkers Bout

NEW YORK, April 16 (I.N.S.)—Something of a modern record for knockdowns in this section was established at the Columbus Sporting Club, Yonkers, last night, when Johnny Grosso of Mount Vernon, Billy Gibson's heavyweight, was stopped by Italian Jack Herman in the seventh round, after both men were on the floor a total of fifteen times. Grosso suffered thirteen knockdowns before the referee called a halt. It was his first knockout.

He died with his boots on, however, dropping Herman in each of the second and third rounds and having him on the verge of a knockout in the latter session.

Mogridge went half when the Phils came to bat, filling the bases, a by Williams, a hit batting, great Larry Benton, who relieved Mogridge with a circuit clout which made the score 3 to 4 in favor of the home boys.

California to Make Bid for Crown

New York, April 16 (I.N.S.)—Poughkeepsie's annual intercollegiate championship regatta was assured of a record list of entries today as a result of the University of California decision to send a crew to the race. The Bears' entry, their first since Washington came into prominence as the Western contender, will bring the total of "outsiders" up to four, the others being the champion Middies, Washington and Wisconsin. The four charter members of the association are Pennsylvania, Cornell, Syracuse and Columbia.

There were three "outsiders" last year, the Middies, Washington and Wisconsin, and they finished in that order.

SOCCER PRO TEAMS CLASH FOR LEWIS TROPHY

FALL RIVER AND BOSTON WILL MEET

New Bedford and Whalers Play Big Game on Patriots' Day at New Bedford

The second annual challenge cup competition under the auspices of the American Soccer League, the premier professional organization of the United States, for the H. Edgar Lewis trophy, which was won last season by the Boston Soccer Football Club, will be inaugurated next Saturday and Sunday, April 17 and 18, when the first round will be contested.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT

Saturday, April 17, at Philadelphia, Pa., Philadelphia vs. Bethlehem; Sunday, April 18, at Brooklyn, N. Y., Brooklyn vs. Indiana Flooring Co.; New York Giants F. C. and Newark F. C. being awarded byes.

NEW ENGLAND DISTRICT

Sunday, April 18, at Taunton, R. I., Fall River vs. Boston; New Bedford F. C. enters the second round through Shawsheen scratching. Byes have been awarded J. & P. Coats F. C. and Providence F. C.

The card furnished by the draw is of such an excellent character and the teams so well matched, that to attempt to pick out any particular game as a star attraction would be a very difficult matter. For instance, victories of the Philadelphia, over New Bedford, New York Giants J. & P. Coats and Newark in recent league contests, has lumped them as the enigma of the league and liable to upset any club. The remaining two games on the card—Brooklyn vs. Indiana Flooring Company and Fall River vs. Boston bring together teams who put up enuously fought battles in the ier phases of the National Challenge Cup competition. Only those teams favored in the draw with byes will have the portunity of improving their nding in the league. On Sunday, ril 18 J. & P. Coats will invade rovidence for the second time this son.

MALCEWICZ PINS PLESTINA TO MAT

Denver, Col., April 16.—Joe Malcewicz, of Utica, N. Y., who recently forced Joe Stecher to run out of a ring in Boston, scored a sensational victory of Marin Plestina, one of the world's leading wrestlers, in a match here. It was a one-fall match and Malcewicz gained the victory in 52 minutes. A crotch and half Nelson pinned Plestina's shoulders to the mat.

It was the first time in nine years that Plestina has suffered defeat. Stecher, Lewis and several of the other leading grapplers have refused to enter a ring with Plestina.

Malcewicz displayed more speed and science than Plestina. He kept forcing the fight all the way and finally weakened Plestina's defense to a point where he was able to crash through with the winning hold.

The bout was attended by a record crowd for Denver. It netted Malcewicz $7,500, as the men battled on a winner-take-all basis.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by—TAD—America's Greatest Boxing Authority

McGovern vs. Britt

THIS is the twenty-first of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country. Tad has covered all the big fights held in this country for the past thirty years. In this review of prominent battles he will tell not alone of championships, but will refresh the memories of many fans who have witnessed thrilling contests in the smaller clubs.

Terry McGovern met Jimmy Britt at the old Madison Square Garden on May 28, 1906, long after his prime, and went ten rounds as speedily as the "old Terry." The bout was a no decision affair.

To be fair in the matter, I must say that the majority of those present that night thought Terry the winner. Terry was the big favorite with the crowd long before the gong sounded. They all seemed to be McGovern men, and they wanted to see Britt "get it good" if he was to get it at all. It was the West against the East, and James was not in it for the cheers.

Tim Hurst, the referee, said it was the hardest fight he ever refereed in his life, as both men held continually and were too strong for him. Britt outjabbed McGovern three to one. There were times in the fight when he landed as many as six jabs without a return.

There were no knockdowns in the fight. There was never a time when either went reeling. Terry had the wallop, but couldn't land it. Britt had the jab which landed, but it had no more effect than if he had left it in the dressing room. At that he was the better boxer, fighting a man with a knockout punch. Both were on their feet at the end of the battle and it might have gone ten rounds more at the same pace.

Before the fight they were offering 3 to 1 that Britt would easily outpoint Terry, and there were some that bet even money that Britt would knock him out. Terry was the surprise and Britt the disappointment.

Terry entered the ring fat. He looked as though he had trained about a week, but he went three ten rounds as fast as any greyhound.

Britt had fought many masterful fights. That night he lacked the punch and the heart. He was not the same Britt at all. Before Nelson knocked him out Jimmy was a vicious little fellow. That night it looked as though he had gone back to a mere boxer.

True, he staggered Terry a few times and tried to drop him, but the sting was not there.

He was as clever as ever, but he was not the snappy hitter with the ripping left and the cutting right. McGovern was still the hero. He was cheered to the echo on leaving the ring. He had a cut over his left eye, while Britt had a cut over one eye and had the other almost closed.

It was a great fight, however, and one that New Yorkers cannot forget. Neither backed away. Terry forced most of the time, but there were times when Britt went in and battled him punch for punch, setting the house to cheers and balling up the fight so that either one might drop at the next punch. There was never a time when one man had a big lead over the other.

A few of the opinions regarding the fight were:

The Gallery—McGovern by a walk.

Young Corbett—If that fight was out in 'Frisco they would say that McGovern was cut to pieces by Britt. They can't say that here. Terry won by a mile. I had Britt beaten a thousand miles, but they gave it to him. I can lick either one of them right now.

Jack O'Brien—It was a very fast fight. Britt was a disappointment to me. Yes, I think Terry beat him and deserved the decision.

Billy Roche—I couldn't give it to either one of them. Terry was the dangerous man, but it would be cheating to favor either one.

Spider Kelly—Britt outbored, outgeneraled and beat Terry at every turn. The only punches McGovern landed were lucky ones. He had to swing five in order to get one in. He was as wild as an Indian, and Britt made him look silly.

Sam Harris—Mitt me, pal. Isn't Terry immense? He was trained down fine and beat Britt at that. He would have knocked him out in five rounds more.

Harvard Blanks Britishers in Lacrosse Match

Harvard blanked the Cambridge-Oxford team in the international lacrosse contest at the Stadium. The final score was 6 to 0. Harvard tallying three goals in each half.

The Crimson players, despite a lack of practice, presented a well balanced combination and are sure to win many victories this Spring.

Charlie Gillies, a football end, was the main threat in the Harvard attack. Goalie Borden of the visitors was peppered by Gillies throughout the match, and the first period was not very old before the Crimson inside home had raced two men. Lane was the boy who completed the scoring for Harvard in this period.

The English team showed to better advantage in the last half. The Crimson passing game was not to be denied, however, and toward the latter part of the game three Harvard goals landed in the British sanctuary from hot scrimmages in front of the net. North caged two and Drier scored the other.

The Somerville Owls have an open date on Patriots' Day, owing to cancellation. The management is anxious to fill this date. Arrangements can be made with Earl Landry, 307 Medford street, Somerville.

GOLF NOTES

Tommy Welch is ready for the opening of the golf season. The popular Woodland district instructor has been getting daily aid from the amateurs and professionals who have been showing at the Woodland range. Any golfer who is in need of a real right arm jolt should not sign Welch a hard one.

Tom Mclnerney and John Feeney have returned from the South. John Feeney came up with the grip used his arrival home and his fiancé will get his game back noticeably.

Chick Connelly, the only amateur member of the N. E. P. G. C., is making two courses a day. Chick is out each evening and after raking around some course, grabs a belated lunch, jumps to another club for an afternoon round.

John Flattery of the Pine Brook Valley Country Club and Billy Duffy of the Woodland Golf Club are matched to play a match of 18 holes on the Pine Brook course next Sunday afternoon. Both are well known golfers and the match should be a good one. Flattery is a former member of the Woodland club and Duffy is a former member of the Pine Brook club. Both are well known golfers and the match should be a good one.

Mark J. Dillon, one of the leading golfers of the Commonwealth, is making a strong bid for the championship of the Woodland golf club, as to the best lap of the dining room and kitchen.

Clarence Booth, the long hitting professional at the Pine Brook club, is now playing in the N. E. P. G. A. tournaments this season.

Walter Hagen, the former national open champion, will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, which will be held at the Hotel Commodore, New York City, on April 19. Hagen is going to the first professional tournament of the season at Norfolk on May 3. Those no-golfers are standing some of the prominent members of the P. G. A. at a real dinner should be found up to the scene.

He probably who drew up the plans for the Newton country club never foresaw golf would come to be enjoyed. Frank Hough, the manager of the Woodland golf club, as to the best lap of the dining room and kitchen.

HOW TO KEEP ENVELOPE BUDGET

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK NO. 28

By MARTHA LEE

"Do you think the envelope system is the best for keeping my budget money?" asks a Winthrop bride and her question is echoed all over New England.

It certainly do—with variations. Circumstances of course always alter cases. For a small income where a considerable portion of the ready cash is used up each week, 6 strong manilla envelopes kept in a safe place are all that you require. Mark them shelter, food, clothing, operating, savings and personal. Each pay day put the various amounts in their individual envelopes and keep it there until the bills which they cover fall due. Probably you pay your grocery bill weekly, or if by cash you will dip into the food envelope daily. By the envelope system at the end of the month your rent money is ready as well as cash for all other monthly bills. The money in the savings envelope can be deposited at the end of each month, or as more convenient and you can also deposit the money saved towards quarterly insurance premiums, etc. Simply indicate on the envelope the amount deposited to the credit of the envelope in the bank and be sure that this amount is not drawn from the bank for any purpose.

This same system can be employed with a larger income, keeping the envelopes in a strong box and depositing at your convenience the money that accumulates for the larger bills such as interest on a mortgage, money for clothing to be purchased at a later date, educational fund, etc. This money can be put in the savings bank and withdrawn as needed, but be sure that you note on the envelope the amount on call at the bank.

A checking account is a great convenience and many banks are glad to start the account with a $100 deposit which can be immediately drawn on if necessary. On deposits under $300 there is a monthly charge of $1, which is well worth the service rendered. Your cancelled check is a valuable indisputable receipt and applies household accounting tremendously. As with the savings account indicate on your stub or envelope the amount of credit of each budget allotment in the bank.

There is really nothing complicated about budgeting. It is just as simple as it sounds.

If you haven't sent for your budget forms, why not get out your pen and ink right now? You'll never go back to "easy come, easy go" methods again once you have proved for yourself the advantage of this simple systematizing of the household money.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. F. J. C.—I would suggest on the $55 income: Rent $14 for the heated home and business carfares, food $15.25, including husband's luncheons downtown, clothing $10.75, operating $5.75 (gas, electricity, laundry), savings $5.50, personal $14.75, including all other expenses such as vacations, church and club dues, newspapers, cigars, candy, etc.

Mrs. L. M. B.—The Standard Budget for $15 for a family of 3 is: Savings $2.50, shelter $5, including business and school carfares, food $4.50, clothing $3.50, operating $2.50, personal $1.00. Your rent is high, payments on furniture are high and insurance high for these figures. They take up $10.87 of your $25, and you say there are other back bills. With your expenses as they are the best you can do with the balance is $11 for food, operating $2.87 and $2 for personal.

Mrs. A. B. B.—Please note answer to Mrs. L. M. B., whose problem is about the same as yours.

Mrs. J. A. T.—Your rent is a little high. $9.40 a week should cover the rent and all business and school carfares. For the present you'll have to pare off somewhere else to make this up. Try this plan: Savings $2 (including insurance); food $13.40; shelter, $9.50; operating, $5.00, personal, $6.00; clothing, $10. Your food bill needs special study. It really can be done—and well.

Mrs. J. W. S. is unusually fortunate. She has $65 a week for a family of two and no debts. She thinks she should save more. I'd suggest $13 for rent, including business carfares; $14.25 for food, including husband's lunches downtown; $9.75 for clothing; $9.75 for operating; $3.00 for savings, and $9.75 for personal.

Mrs. G. E. "I would like to start a home budget for $18 a week, Rent $1.75, insurance $1.20, milk $1.54, back bills $5 a week until paid, and what's left goes to eats. Can't save a cent. Four in family."

You are fortunate in having so small a rent and the advantage of bringing up the children in the country. With Summer coming on no doubt you can call on the home garden for some of your green vegetables which will help out on the food budget. Can't you arrange to have the weekly payment on the back bills made smaller and stretched over a longer time? You really can't hope to save anything at present with so much of your income mortgaged before received. Allowing only $6.45 for food, which is not nearly enough, your present necessary expenses, aside from the payment of the bill, total $11.44; $5.00 added for the bill makes $16.44 leaving only $1.56 for all your other expenses. Try to arrange to pay only $3 on the bill which will give you $8 for food. Your insurance of $1.70 a week represents your savings.

Here's an entirely different $50 a week budget for Mrs. E. A. F., two in family, $18 weekly covers board, room and laundry, $4 for Christmas fund and $4 on vacation fund (by the way do you know that the Boston American Automobile and Travel Bureau will show you how to get the most for your money out of that vacation fund?) A debt of $58.60 on radio to be paid in three months. A new auto coming in April which will be $40 a month for 18 months, insurance $14.25 quarterly.

You can't splurge very desperately in clothes and extras for the next 18 months, lady dear. Your budget will line up $18 room, board and laundry, $9.10 weekly savings, Xmas Club, vacation fund and insurance, clothing $3, personal $10.90 including payments on radio and car and all other miscellaneous expenses.

Mrs. L. V. J. asks me to budget a salary of $35. The standard figure are: savings $3, including insurance; shelter $7.60, food $9.50, clothing $6, operating $6, personal $4. You will have to pare off something here and there to add to your food bill, as there are six in your family.

Please realize, good friends, that none of these budgets are ironclad. No one but you yourself can make a budget suited to your own special requirements. All I can do is to outline a budget balanced so that one necessity—such as food—will not eat up the money needed for other essentials.

"The Temptress" -:- By Ibanez

"The Temptress" is to be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a special Cosmopolitan production.

CELINDA and her companion were watching the river in silence.

"Come, Senorita Rojas," exclaimed Watson suddenly, feeling the need perhaps of dispelling the seductive influence of the evening, "come. It will soon be dark, and your ranch is a good distance from here."

The girl laughed at the suggestion of there being any danger for her in that, but at last she beds her friend goodby and set her horse at a gallop.

Richard started back to the camp. As Watson went along between the two rows of buildings he met all the principal personages of the camp. First to cross his camp was the senor de Canterno, formerly a captain in the French artillery, who, according to the statements of many who called themselves his friends, had, because of certain private enterprises, been forced to flee his country. At present he was employed as engineer by the Argentine government.

He was a man of forty-odd, inclined to stoutness, his hair and mustache turning white. Yet he preserved a certain youthfulness of

"And when do you expect Robledo?" he inquired.

"He'll be getting here at any time now. He has probably already landed at Buenos Aires. Some friends are coming along with him, it seems. $9.10 weekly savings, Xmas Club, vacation fund and insurance, clothing $3, personal $10.90 including payments on radio and car and all other miscellaneous expenses.

Watson smiled. With a gesture of latter-taking, he went on towards his quarters. He stopped to reply to the greetings of a young man, who, in his city clothes, looked as though he might be a government clerk.

This was Timoteo Moreno, born in Argentina of Spanish parents. The Commissioner of Public Works had sent him as his representative to the town of the Rincon. And it was his chief responsibility to pay to the contractor, Pironel, the money sent on for that purpose by the government.

"I forgot to leave Captain Canterre's check at his place," he told Watson as walked along. "He couldn't use it right now, anyhow."

Now they were standing in front of the bungalow belonging to the rich man of the settlement. He invited them in.

Showy clothes did not conceal the fact that this was the Pironel who had arrived in Argentina ten years earlier as a common laborer; but they did give everyone to understand that he was one of the richest men in South America.

Certain that Moreno and the contractor wanted to talk over the construction plan, Watson refused a second glass of his host's wine, and left the bungalow.

It was dark now in the streets and all the life of the town seemed concentrated in the taverns.

Most of the patrons of the establishment were standing, taking their drinks over the bar.

A horseman dismounted in front of the tavern.

The newcomer, whom the men greeted with respect, might have been about 30 years of age. Like all the other horsemen of the region, he wore a poncho and heavy spurs; his hair and beard were long, and his sharply-outlined profile might have been taken for that of an Arab. Although handsome, his bearing was harsh and revellent, and in his black eyes shone at times an expression that was both imperious and cruel. This was "Manos Duras," notorious in the territory, and a somewhat disquieting neighbor, for he lived from the sale of cattle, but no one had ever been able to discover where he bought his herds.

The proprietor made haste to offer him a glass of gin, while even the roughest looking gauchos raised a hand to their hats as though he were their chief. The Galicians looked curiously at him, repeating his name to one another, while the mestizos went toward him smiling like slave girls.

Fat, good-natured and of some what rustic manners, he wore city clothes and looked the official. A revolver in full view on his waistcoat was the only insignia of authority he displayed.

The proprietor handed out his best chair, kept under the counter for guests of unusual distinction, and the commissioner set it down near Manos Duras, who, by way of acknowledging the police commissioner's presence, nodded his head.

Don Roque was puffing with great satisfaction at a huge cigar, which the gaucho, in a lordly manner, had offered.

"Do you know," said the commissioner, speaking in a low tone, "they say you're the fellow who stole three steers from the Ponto Verde ranch last week. That's outside my jurisdiction, since it's in the Rio Colorado limits, but my amorchis, the commissioner over that way, thinks you're the one that did it."

Manos Duras went on smoking in silence. Finally he spat.

"Well, they told the governor of the territory that it was you who killed those two peddlers a few months back."

The terrible gaucho shrugged and said coldly, as if bored by this dialogue

"Why don't they prove what they say?"

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

By Ann Lisle

"IT is too sweet as Jeanie got, and if it is another fly comes buzzing around the honey jar, that may not be so moral, but it is a darn sight more efficient, I'm thinking, than to turn to vinegar like you are after doing."

With these words Pat turned and started from the room. But he had arrested my attention—that caught hold of a filament of my brain which actually seemed to be twisting around his words.

"You advising me to—philander a bit in turn if Jim seems to be turning toward a new face?" I asked.

"Don't be waiting for him to turn," Pat said bluntly. "Give him something to worry about now and then."

"I can't," I protested. "He's the only man there is for me. I can't pretend an interest in a man I don't care for. And I can't hurt a man I—like."

"Moaning Ralph Lacy," Pat said bluntly. "Well, then, 'tis of that I came to speak to you."

"Of Ralph?" I protested. "Oh, no, there is no use of that. I made up my mind about that long ago."

"You did," said Pat. "Well, then, if I was to be after telling you that Ralph is in danger, in grave need, and that he needs your friendship, your help—what would you be after doing, Alanna?"

"Ralph Lacy is not in grave trouble," I protested. "You have no right to suggest such a thing, Pat Dalton. He isn't! If he were I would know."

The room upstairs at The Birches seemed to be spinning around. I felt as if I must run, run away from the buss of machinery in my own room. But where could I run? Jim was down in the living room and Jeanie in the kitchen. I had to stay and have things out with Pat. I had to follow the dizzy twists and turns and loops his brain was making.

"How would you know if Ralph Lacy was in trouble?" Pat asked curtly.

"I would know——"

"By your heart, Alanna? Would that be after telling you?"

"He would let me know. He would send for me. I owe him so much."

"And do you think he would ever be after demanding payment? Do you think he would be trying to collect—especially in his hour of need?"

"He owes it to me to give me a chance to pay."

"And you sending him away!" demanded Pat. "You not seeing him at all?"

"I sent him away in fairness to him!"

"Bosh!" Pat said brusquely. You sent him away in fairness to yourself if you like. It may be that you were after sending him away because of what you thought was fairness to Jim. But you were wrong, you were wrong all along the line."

"Wrong!" I protested.

"Yes. I'll be after telling you"——

"Don't be telling me anything when Ralph may need me now, at once"——

At the look Pat sent me I felt that I had walked into his trap. I scarcely heeded his words to tell me that this was indeed so, but he said in a slow, measured voice:

"I thought you were sure you would KNOW if Ralph was in grave need. So since you needed me to tell you, perhaps he isn't in need at all. Perhaps I was faking. Perhaps I was probing. Perhaps I was after trying to reveal you to yourself."

"Which were you doing?" I asked coldly. "And did you succeed?"

"Perhaps you know whether or not I was after succeeding," Pat said severely. "But there is one more thing I'm after meaning to tell you, Alanna. And it is about us men. If your marriage has not revealed this to you, perhaps I overstep in telling you. But it is yourself that brought Jeanie back to me twice. And it is yourself has revealed me to myself again. And there is no length to which I will not be after going to pay my debts of honor—and gratitude."

"Is that a hint? Are you telling me I ought to think of my debt to Ralph Lacy—which is a thousand times any debt you may fancy you owe me?"

"That is after being between yourself and your conscience," Pat said slowly. "'Tis enough of that I've said for the present. 'Tis this I am after feeling I must be telling you, Alanna, whether or not you like it. It is of men in general I would be after speaking—"

"Why speak of men in general?" I cried, wringing my hands helplessly. "Tell me what is wrong with Ralph!"

"All in good time," Pat said exasperatingly.

"Then tell me why Jim sent you—"

"'Twas his look sent me." Pat said calmly. "And 'twas that I told you before. But if you will be listening for a minute or two while I am telling you something about the sex to which I happen to belong, you can be applying it full yourself—and to Jim and Ralph, as you will."

"You've played with me long enough. You've told me that you men like your city better when you know other men like them. You've told me that you hold with philandering—ignoring the vow to 'cleave to her only'—I'm sick."

"I've told you things that offend your senses of law and order. I've told you that civilization is after being a theory and human nature a fact. And whether or not you listen—and whether or not you like it, this is after being so. A decent man loves one woman.

Martha Lee's Reliable Recipes

Raisin Recipes

GREETINGS, everybody!

I don't want Raisin Week to go by without sharing with you a few more ways to use these "kitchen life-savers" as they are sometimes called.

For instance, if unexpected company for Sunday night supper drops in, a cup of seedless raisins added to your regular baking powder biscuit recipe will make an extra delicious tea biscuit.

For raisin coffee cake add 1 cup of seedless raisins to which one beaten egg has been added for each 2 cups of flour used. Spread the raisin dough in a greased pan and sprinkle with ½ cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon of butter and 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, all creamed together. Bake in a hot oven and serve hot.

If you have sandwiches to make for office or school you'll find that the raisin bread does not dry out so quickly as plain bread. A delightful spread is made by putting equal parts of seedless raisins and peanuts through the fine cutter of the food chopper or mixing peanut butter with the ground raisins or finely chopped walnut meats.

If there is ever left-over raisin bread you'll find delicious toast or better yet, made into French toast. And for the children who turn up their noses at plain bread and milk, try raisin bread and milk and see if they don't quickly change their attitude.

Raisin dumplings I believe are quite new to most of us and are delicious with a meat stew or fricasseed chicken

BOILED RAISIN DUMPLINGS

To your favorite biscuit recipe add seedless raisins in proportion of ½ cup for each cup of flour used. Decrease the shortening to 1 teaspoon for each cup of flour used. Add sufficient liquid (milk or water) to make a stiff dough. Drop by spoonfuls onto your meat about 15 minutes before it is ready to remove from the fire. Cover tightly and cook without removing cover for 15 minutes.

Baked dumplings are also delicious made thusly:

BAKED DUMPLINGS.

Roll baking powder biscuit dough to ½ inch thickness and cut in 4-inch squares. Spread with butter, place a spoonful of stewed raisins thickened slightly with cornstarch near the centre. Moisten edges, fold in halves diagonally and press edges together. Place in greased pan and bake in hot oven. Serve hot with a raisin liquid sauce made as follows:

Pinch salt.

Mix sugar, salt, flour, add boiling water, gradually, place over fire and stir until thick. Remove from the stove, add butter, raisins and vanilla. If made in advance, this sauce should be kept over hot water.

Hundreds of other delicious raisin recipes, compiled by four famous cooks, have been gathered together in a raisin recipe book, which I will gladly send you without charge on request.

Martha Lee

Wash the rice thoroughly and drain and place in a buttered pudding dish and pour in the milk. Bake in a slow oven for 1½ hours stirring occasionally. Add remaining ingredients and bake from ½ to 1 hour longer. Do not stir after adding ingredients but allow to become a golden brown on top.

CHAPTER XIV

AFTER leaving Ranny Sylvia was in a fever to get back to the baby.

Oh, what difference did it make after all, if Ranny had given Elsie Leopold a bathroom in his office? What earthly difference did it make if they were there together from morning until night, making love to each other, no doubt?

It made no difference at all to Sylvia that morning, and for many mornings to come.

Ranny's faithlessness suddenly had lost its power to hurt her. Nothing had any power to hurt her, now, but the thought of the baby at home in his tiny, stuffy room, with its one window that opened on a dark air-shaft.

But halfway home, she saw some thing that made her lean forward and ask the driver to turn and take her back to Ranny's office.

That "something" was nothing more or less than a bright colored advertisement on a signboard they happened to be passing.

Under the picture was the legend "Rent that home in the country, now, and keep the kiddies healthy." It was an ad for Ranny's own company—"Jamison Phelps & Son."

Then minutes later when Sylvia opened the door of Ranny's office and stepped inside, he glanced up at her in amazement. Then he shot Elsie Leopold a warning look that Sylvia didn't even see.

Sylvia's Demand

But Elsie jumped up, and hurried out of the office, leaving a strong taint of perfume in the air behind her.

When they were alone, Sylvia told Ranny what she had come back to tell him.

"You have some nerve for rent out in the country. I saw them advertised," she said. "I want one of them right away."

His eyes widened, then narrowed. "You're not leaving me?" he asked. "You're not going away by yourself?"

She shook her head. "Don't be silly," she said, "it's because of rumor that I want to get away, he can't stay in The Nest any more. It's going to die if he does—"

"Oh, nonsense, Sylvia!" Ranny broke in. "Thousands of healthy kids live in town and in flats, too."

"Not in rooms that open on an airshaft," Sylvia shook her head, "and our baby isn't a healthy baby. He never should have lived in town at all. You get the house, that's all—I have plenty of money for the rent. You get the house."

Then she was gone. Ranny heard one uncontrollable sob escape her lips as she shut the door and went out.

• • •

Dr. Buzzard's shabby green car stopped at the Beacon street flat just ahead of the taxicab.

She raced up the stairs behind the doctor and reached the door of The Nest just as Aunt Agony opened it.

Baby Very Ill

"The baby's worse," she said, looking from one to the other of them, nervously. "It's like a live coal—he's so hot. And I can't make him open his eyes."

"Now, then, Sylvia," she said presently, "that's an awfully sick little baby in there, and you've got to make up your mind—"

Sylvia didn't wait to hear the rest of what she had to say. She wrenched herself out of Aunt Agony's arms and flew into her bedroom—here and Ranny's. She sank down on the floor and gave way to the storm of tears that she had been holding back all morning.

But the old doctor had not lived with sickness and death for thirty years for nothing. In that time he had learned things about the human heart that only doctors and nurses and ministers ever do learn about it. And so he knew that Sylvia's sullenness masked the pain and torment that were in her heart that morning.

Sends Ranny Away

He put out one of his hands and took hers in it. "My dear, the baby has a pretty heavy cold," he told the truth in his kindly way. "It's down in his chest. I've told Agony just what to do for him today, and I'll be around again about supper time."

All day long the baby lay in his crib stupor. Sitting on the floor beside his bed, Sylvia counted his rapid breathing and his fluttering heart beats over and over, until Aunt Agony dragged her out of the room.

At seven o'clock Dr. Buzzard came again. He stayed in the baby's room for about ten minutes, and when he came out his face was very grave.

He told them very quietly what was the matter with the tiny thing. At the mention of the word "flu" he had expected Sylvia to burst into tears again, but she only looked at him with eyes that were like flint.

"I'm sorry to turn you out, Ranny," she said to him, and she might have been talking to a perfect stranger, "but you'll have to go over to your mother's to sleep. The baby's awfully sick, and Aunt Agony's going to stay nights with me. She'll have to have your bed. Dr. Buzzard's sending a trained nurse for the daytime."

Without a word he picked up his bags. Then he caught sight of the baby's little bed that had been drawn into the airy living room.

"Dimmie is the poor little boy sick as all that?" Ranny asked, and tiptoed into the room to look down at the little son whom he hardly knew.

Kiss Worthless

But his kiss, that had always had the power to thrill Sylvia to the depths of her soul, meant less than nothing to her now. Her eyes looked at him blindly as if a shade had been drawn down over them.

He telephoned from his office the next morning to ask how the baby was.

She blamed the baby's sickness on it. She knew that if he had had a sunny, airy room to sleep in—a porch where he could have spent his days, he wouldn't be the frail, white thing he was.

• • •

The baby had been sick for five days when Miss Blodgett, the trained nurse, opened the door of Sylvia's room one afternoon.

Only ten minutes before, she had ordered her in bed, and as soon as Sylvia looked at her face, she saw that something was wrong.

"I've just telephoned for Dr. Buzzard," she said, "and I thought I ought to tell you—that the baby seems a little worse."

There was no doubt that the baby was much worse. The flush of fever was gone from him and she imagined that there was a bluish tinge to his waxen skin. He was making the queerest little gasping sounds. They seemed to merge into a long, rattling moan.

She turned her stony face to the nurse and took her by both shoulders.

"You tell me the truth, Miss Blodgett," she said to her, "my baby's going to die, isn't he?"

Women Find

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Can I Hold His Interest? -:- -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

SHE IS WELL EDUCATED — RECEIVES MUCH ATTENTION — IS ATTRACTIVE LOOKING — CANNOT HOLD FRIENDS. WHY?

By Beatrice Fairfax
Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

BEAUTIFUL girls usually receive a great deal of attention and admiration. They are invited to everything that's going on and have more partners at dances than they know what to do with.

Yet it often happens that a beauty has an even harder problem to solve than girls have who are plain, unassuming little "nobodies," in holding interest and love.

More beauty soon becomes boring and men turn to girls who, because their looks are less alluring, have cultivated the abiding gift of charm.

"Dear Miss Fairfax, writes "B. L.:

"I am an attractive young woman of twenty-five. I have a high school education, am a graduate in music and am as well-bred as the average girl—probably a little better bred than ordinary girls.

"I am of the stately, dignified type with a figure that men rave over, which is the envy of all the women I know. I have brown eyes, brown hair. In fact, I am considered a very handsome woman. Now for my problem:

"I meet numbers of young men. Most of them are very desirable, nice young men, and at first they all seem attracted to me. In some instances they are swept off their feet. But I cannot hold them.

"I have been told by friends—both girls and men—that I have a very lovable disposition and a lot of common sense. Can you tell me what the trouble is?

"Summing up the entire problem, I have no trouble in attracting men. But how can I hold their interest and love? I am especially anxious to hold and—keep—one particular friend with whom I am now going about. I will thank you so much for your advice."

In my opinion, your own letter answers your question, "B. L." Looking over it you will find that of its six short paragraphs, five begin with "I," while several paragraphs end with "me," "my" or "myself."

Most of the girls who write me regarding their desire to hold the love of the man they admire, devote the greater part of the letter to describing the fine qualities of the man, giving, perhaps, one short paragraph to a summing up of their own appearance and personality. Your letter gives Mr. Man one brief sentence. Even that sentence begins with "I."

It really isn't difficult to see why you are just a little egotistical, my dear, as the result doubtless of the many compliments you receive?

Nearly all of us are a little conceited and have a good opinion of ourselves. But most of us learn from experience that we can't hold interest and affection that way.

Do you wish to hold the interest and friendship of the man who interests you? And if you do, to say nothing of lasting affection?

I suggest that you study yourself in his mirror. Read the books he reads, see the plays he sees, learn the things that interest him. Then, if you find that you have anything in common, you can talk to him about them. Ask his opinion, his advice. Show him that you are interested in him and in his affairs.

Another letter from the Crown Princess of Prussia to her mother, even more thrilling than the first, will appear tomorrow.

European Embroilments Worry Queen Victoria

Fritz then sent his protest to Bismarck on the 4th, saying he wished to have an answer immediately. Bismarck has not answered.

Rouses King's Fury

I did all I could to induce Fritz to do so, knowing how necessary it was that he should once express his sentiments openly and disclaim having any part in the last measures of the Government. He did so accordingly in very mild and measured terms—you will have no doubt seen it in the newspapers. To this the King answered Fritz a furious letter, treating him quite like a little child; telling him instantly to retract in the newspapers the words he had spoken at Dansig, charging him with disobedience, etc., and telling him that if he said one other word of the kind he would instantly recall him and take his place in the army and the Council from him.

Fritz and I sat up till one last night writing the answer, which Captain von Lucsadon has taken to Berlin this morning, and in which Fritz says that he is almost broken-hearted at causing his father so much pain, but that he could not retract the words spoken to Winter at Dansig; that he had always hoped the King's Government would not act in a way which should force him to put himself in direct opposition to the King; but now it had come to that, and he (Fritz) would stand by his opinions.

He felt that under such circumstances it would be impossible for him to retain any office military or civil, and he laid both at the feet of the King. As he felt that his presence must be disagreeable to the King, he begged him to name a place, or allow us to select one, where he could live in perfect retirement and not mix in politics.

What the upshot of this will be, Heaven knows. Fritz has done his duty and has nothing to reproach himself with. But he is in a state of perfect misery, and in consequence not at all well. I hope you will make his conduct known to your Ministers, and to all our friends in England. We feel dreadfully alone, having not a soul from whom to ask advice. But Fritz's course of duty is so plain and straightforward that it requires no explaining or advising.

How unhappy I am to see him so worried, I cannot say; but I shall stand by him, as is my duty and advise him to do his in the face of all the Kings and Emperors of the whole world.

A year of silence and self-denial has brought Fritz no other fruits than that of being considered weak and helpless. He has now given them an opportunity of judging of his way of thinking, and consequently will now again be passive and silent till better days come.

(Undated.)—General Grey (Private Secretary to Queen Victoria) has shown the enclosed (the preceding letter from the Crown Princess of Prussia) to Lord Russell, who is much pleased with it, and thanks Your Majesty much for having let him see it. Nothing, he thinks, can be more judicious than the course the Crown Prince has adopted, and the hope of any good depends on his firm perseverance in it. With the Crown Princess by his side, there seems no fear of his not being firm.

Daughter of Liberty

The way in which the Government behaves, and the way in which they have treated Fritz rouse my every feeling of indignation. Thank God, I was born in England, where people are not slaves, and too good to allow themselves to be treated as such.

I hope that our nation here will soon prove that we come of the same forefathers, and strive for their own lawful independence, to which they have been too long callous.—Victoria.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for guests who have been invited to an informal dinner at one's home, to leave a "tip" for the hostess' maid or maids?

2. Does it make any difference whether or not the maids have been employed specially to serve the dinner? Should the guests leave a "tip" for the waitress in either case?

H. G.

IT is not proper for a guest to tip the maid when the guest is dining at the home of a friend. It is proper to tip the maids when one is staying for a visit, but not when one is only dining at the house.

2. It makes no difference whether the maids are the regular maids of the household or are employed especially for the occasion. Tipping does not seem to indicate that the dinner is more a restaurant dinner a dinner given in a public place, rather than a dinner given in a home.

TRUE MOTHERHOOD

WHEN, oh, when will motherhood be considered a profession that women must know at least the rudiments of!

The other day, in driving through a distant village, I saw a mother venting her anger upon her small son, striking him, shaking him, until he roared with pain and terror.

If that child grows up to be a murderer, a rebel against all laws of justice and kindness, who will be to blame?

There is much sentimental lies wasted upon the mere FACT of motherhood, never considering whether it is true motherhood or merely physical motherhood.

I have been mother of six, and I should despise myself if I had been merely the producer of six children without being also the trainer of those children's minds and morals with the best of my wisdom, patience and love.

Always I stand for maternity. I encourage women to be mothers—good mothers. I love children and believe them the greatest of assets. No woman who has not known the sacrifices, joys, doubts, pains and recompenses of motherhood, has lived her fullest life.

But the woman who distresses and angers me is the one who bears children selfishly, carelessly, haphazardly, and then neglects them or tears them badly—and still expects to be venerated for her motherhood.

I have tried to teach my children the responsibilities of parenthood, as well as its beauties. We cannot all take the gift of perfect wisdom, perfect self-control, perfect understanding.

But we all can watch our tempers and keep from such stupid cruelties as one sees too often, alas, on the part of mothers. We can keep our minds open to new ideas in child training. We can, if we will, learn much from our own children by taking them into our confidence and seeing through their eyes. And we can all remember that it is not the children's fault that they have come into the world, but OUR responsibility.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

WOMEN have been going out with so many fellows lately who are broke, that a lot of girls won't accept an invitation from a man any more unless he establishes his credit.

SHE makes the man show her his wallet in advance. She says she's tired of having him call a cab and then walk her over to the street car.

HE tires to act pitty in front of her house. He hails a taxi and then when the machine rolls up he asks the chauffeur the time.

NEW YORK flappers demand taxicabs. They think that trolley cars were made for policemen and letter carriers.

IF it wasn't for wives, the erection companies would have to go out of business.

A DAME doesn't mind having her name connected with an automobile smash-up, but she's mortified to death if the papers mention the fact that she was in a street car accident.

SHE slipped one day and hurt herself badly but he wouldn't call an ambulance. He didn't want her to get used to automobiles.

NATURE'S AIDS TO BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza,

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Co. and One of the Most Beautiful Women of Her Day.

By MARIA JERITZA

A MAN closely associated with an enormous manufacturing concern, which sells hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of toilet requisities each year, told me quite seriously the other day, that next to her daily bread, woman's chief interest today is in ways and means of keeping beautiful.

This is a hopeful sign. For woman can't adventure far in quest of beauty without learning that it is founded on health. No makeshift which ignores the necessity of basic good health can be successful.

You may load your face with rouge and powder, but fawn, wrinkles, or a drawn, haggard look stand out the more conspicuously under this makeup.

A perfect complexion—perfect in coloring and texture and the five other look so essential to beauty—come from nature's laboratory and results from sound health and sensible care of the skin.

Plenty of sleep and fresh air, clean, simple food in the form of well balanced meals, daily outdoor exercise, effectual cleansing of the skin, baths each day together with healthful, happy thoughts and plenty of rest and recreation as well as work, should bring beauty to any complexion and joy to its possessor.

Since the earliest days of history, women have cleansed the skin with oils. Sometimes oil was used in connection with water, sometimes with gentle tonics such as those distilled from plants and flowers.

Cold cream is a little easier to apply to the face than liquid oils and also, in emulsion of most women, is pleasanter to use. If you use a cold cream that agrees with your skin, you will find it an invaluable aid to your beauty as well as your dainty cleanliness.

Some women fear to use cold cream lest it encourage the growth of hair. But a cold cream without animal fats is not likely to grow hair, especially if it is promptly removed after cleansing the face thoroughly.

If you like to make your own toilet requisites, you will enjoy making up this pure, delicate cold cream, which, with its almond oil base, cannot harm the most delicate skin.

Rosewater, 250 grams; oil of sweet almonds, 250 grams; white beeswax 10 grams; spermaceti, 10 grams; oil of rose, 1 gram.

Do not use direct heat in melting these ingredients together, but rather, place a porcelain dish containing the beeswax and spermaceti in a dish of hot water. The heat of the fire would be too harsh and might taint the cream.

Slowly stir in the oil of sweet almonds with a long handled wooden spoon. Drop the rosewater into the mixture little by little, stirring it until it is thoroughly mixed and begins to cream. This will probably mean stirring until your arms ache and you are convinced it never will cream. When it begins to thicken, pour the cream into a wide mouthed young jar of glass or porcelain and set it cool.

Last of all, when the cream is cool, add the oil of rose or any perfume you prefer. But oil of rose blending with the fragrance of rose water that permeates the cream will perfume it delicately and exquisitely.

This jar of pure cold cream should last many months if you are careful. Use no soap and smear the skin almost like a liquid. You will, I am sure, find it deliciously refreshing, and as a cleansing, cooling, and tremor freshener, too,

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OLD Winter brought us in his sombre train dark days and drear, but now our hearts are tuned to song again, for Spring is near. Spring comes, and even as the greening earth awakes from sleep, while piping robins voice their mad cap mirth and fresh buds peep, she quickens, too, the bounding pulse of man; his glad heart thrills to see, along the hillsides' sloping span, gay daffodils. For surely never flower wooed the sun in fairer mold, and surely never meadows robes were spun of brighter gold. And with them come old miracles again of song and bud, and magic quickness of April rain to stir the blood. So it has ever been and still will be while down the hills Spring comes and sets men's joyous fancies free with daffodils.

This morning let us try to calmly discuss the various aspects of this 3½ per cent. health beer the government has authorized drug stores to sell.

The beer contains "suspended malt," according to the government, which prevents its use for purely hilarious purposes, because "suspended malt" makes the ultimate consumer sick.)

What a vicious circle!

You go to a drug store to buy health beer and it makes you sick so that you have to go back to the drug store and buy some more health beer.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY was sitting by the window of the train in which we were speeding by some great wheat fields in southern Canada. Then he looked out and said:

"Just look, Foxy Grandpa! Look at all that wheat!"

"Yes," I said. "Think of all the loaves of bread that will make."

"Must be an awful job to cut that all down," said Bobby.

"They have great machines for it now," I commented, "but think when men had to do it by hand with a sickle."

"That must have been awfully hard work," declared Bobby.

"That reminds me of a story," was all I had to say for Bobby to settle back comfortably and look up into my face waiting for me to start.

"Hundreds of years ago in France there was a very good King who was much beloved by his people because he was a very good King and had their interests so at heart that he was called 'The Father of his People.' This King was Louis the Twelfth.

"One day it came to the ears of the good King Louis that a certain nobleman, whom he knew very well, had been cruel and brutal to one of the peasants who worked for him on his country estate.

"The King was furious and very indignant that one of his subjects should be so chastised. So he determined to teach this cruel man a lesson. But he didn't tell anyone about it.

"The King thought this matter over very seriously for several weeks, and then he decided how he was going to teach the nobleman the lesson which he deserved.

"The King sent the nobleman a royal invitation with a wide ribbon and the royal seal on it, inviting him to dinner.

"Now the nobleman was very much flattered and delighted to think that he had been summoned to dine with the King. So he dressed himself in his finest clothes and drove in his coach in great pomp to the King's palace.

"When the nobleman arrived at the palace, he was very much surprised to find that the King was not to dine with him, but that he was to dine by himself.

"There was the magnificent table spread with everything in the world good to eat, and the nobleman sat down to this gorgeous table all by himself.

"He started to eat this grand dinner and found, much to his surprise, that there was no bread on the table. It seemed strange to him that this should be the case, but, of course, he did not care to ask for it.

"As the meal progressed he felt more and more the need of bread, and, in fact, the great banquet was really spoiled for the lack of it.

"Then the King entered the chamber and said:

"'Have you good fare, my lord?'

"'Your Majesty, the feast has been magnificent,' A feast fit for a King, but I miss something very much. I regret to tell Your Majesty that there was no bread on the table and bread is necessary to live.'

"The King looked very cross and severely said:

"'No! Perhaps now you will understand the lesson this will teach you. Since you need bread yourself, now perhaps you will learn to treat kindly those whose work it is to make it grow in order that you may have it.'"

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

MA was talking about old songs last nite, she sed that there wasent any new songs as nice as them old ones like Sweet Dreamland Faces Passing Two & Frow. I dount know what sense thare is in that, passing Two & Frow, but that is what she sed.

Yes, sed Pa, them old songs was the best. I remember one which used to clutch at my very hart strings, sed Pa, it went like this. Ha Ha Ha, you & me. Littel brown jug, how I love thee.

Of course, sed Ma, I can imajin how that song wud of ap-pealed to you in the old days, of course, sed Ma. But the song riters of today, sed Ma, seem to have lost the leerick touch.

What do you meen, leerick touch? I sed.

A leerick is a buetiful jingling verse, Bobbie, sed Ma, like O B leeve one if all Those Endearing Young Charms, sed Ma. The old songs had a tenderness & refinement that songs nowadays seem to lack all-together, sed Ma.

For goodness sake, deer, sed Ma, think of the buetiful old songs, not the trash. Think of Sweet Jenny Veeve & Hoam Sweet Hoam & I Heer You Calling Me.

You dee-serve it, I guess, said Ma. You are so silly wen I am sentymental.

Wen you are senty-mental you are also semi-mental, sed Pa.

How dare you? sed Ma. I guess I haf as much mentality as the rest of this household, sed Ma.

It is gitting so I dont talk on any seerius subjeck, sed Ma, without eether you or Bobbie trying to riddikule me, sed Ma.

I dount riddikule you, do I, Ma? I sed.

You better not try it, sed Ma. If you know what is good for you.

I know what is good for me, I sed a quarter ($5) cents, I sed.

Stop asking yure mother for munny, sed Pa. There is nothing sentimental about Munny, Bobbie, sed Pa, & yure mother is feeling senti-mental this eve, sed Pa.

Oh, I dount know, sed Pa. I am pritty senti-mental now & then, sed Pa. To prove that I can be senti-mental, sed Pa, I will make a sweet littel pome rite off the bat, sed Pa, like this:

Oh wife of mine, dear wife of mine,
Yure eyes still shine & look di-vine.

Rich

Thus millions of mothers insist on the Quaker brand. Children who ordinarily don't like oats, take readily to this rich and toasty kind.

Quaker flavor is due to exclusive milling processes which took some 50 years to perfect. Processes, too, which retain much of the "bulk" of oats, which makes laxatives less often needed.

The price is the same as for ordinary oats. When a substitute is accepted, you alone are the loser.

TARIFF CUT BY CANADA SHUTS AUTO PLANT

3,000 Employes Out of Work Pending General Motors Company Survey

Toronto, Ont., April 15 (A.P.).—The plant of the General Motors Corporation at Oshawa, Ont., suspended operations today as a result of Canadian tariff reductions on imported automobiles and 3,000 employes are temporarily out of work.

"On account of tariff changes the entire plant is closed indefinitely until the company is able to arrive at an intelligent conclusion as to what future course may be considered advisable."

R. S. McLaughlin, president of the company, declined to make any comment. Comment of other manufacturers on the tariff changes which they claim will result in a crisis in the Canadian motorcar manufacturing industry, was withheld pending a meeting today of members of the automotive industries of Canada.

The tariff changes, which, according to advices from Ottawa, go into effect today, call for a reduction of 15 per cent. on imported automobiles valued at not more than $1,200 retail and 27½ per cent. on those valued at more than $1,2000 retail.

SHOWERS DUE TONIGHT; MERCURY TAKES JUMP

Starting at a point north of Northern Montana, a regular procession of alternate waves of cool and comparatively warm weather will sweep over Southern New England during the current week-end, according to the prediction of the local weather bureau. Cloudy skies will prevail throughout today with rising temperature, and with the possibility of light rains tonight. Fair weather, but cool, is expected tomorrow accompanied by strong southwest shifting to northwest winds. The mercury today stood at 37 above, 5 degrees higher than the minimum for the night.

WOMAN, 53, SENTENCED FOR HAVING COCAINE

Mrs. Emma L. Rew, fifty-three, of No. 63 Edgewood street, Roxbury, was sentenced today in Roxbury Court to three months in the Charles Street Jail on a charge of having cocaine in her possession.

She was found after a telephone call was received from officers in Malden, and an address in her possession brought the arrest of her husband in New York on a similar charge.

A plea for leniency was made by Mrs. Rew, who said she had abandoned to cure herself of the drug habit, but succumbed again following an operation.

STARS RAISE HIGH JINKS TO CHEER VETS

Gus Shy, comedian of "Captain Jinks" company, and who is shy in name only, convulsed the veterans with entertainment provided by the Boston American.

SHOWER OF METEORS FOR OLD EARTH TONIGHT

Chicago, April 16 (A.P.).—This old earth, which has brooked no interference with the even tenor of its course through untold centuries, will renew acquaintance tonight with what may be the remnants of a comet that went to pieces ages ago.

There will be a display of fireworks in the sky as the periodic swarm of meteors known as the Lyrids enters the earth's atmosphere and is consumed.

The Lyrids appear every year between April 16 and 23, with the greatest pyrotechnical display on the 21st. They received their name from the fact that they appear to radiate from the constellation of Lyra, which contains the brilliant star Vega.

Probably the most remarkable of all meteoric showers was that of the Leonids on November 13 1833. The number of meteors at some stations of observation was estimated as high as 100,000 an hour for five or six hours. "The sky was as full of them as it ever is of snow flakes in a storm," one witness noted.

MELLON OVERRULED BY M'CARL ON RUM PLANES

Washington, April 16 (A.P.).—Five Coast Guard seaplanes, being built for use against rum ships, will have no hangars, under a decision by Comptroller-General McCarl. Overruling an appeal by Secretary Mellon, McCarl has held no provision for construction of hangars was made in a $3,900,000 appropriation bill for building the planes and for equipment. Mellon, who has jurisdiction over the Coast Guard, had written the Comptroller-General that hangars were needed and asked that they be charged against the appropriation as equipment.

ARGENTINA FLIERS PLAN FLIGHT FROM NEW YORK

Buenos Aires, April 16 (A.P.).—The Foreign Office is cabling Ambassador Pueyrredon at Washington to seek the assistance of the American authorities for a flight from New York to Buenos Aires to be undertaken by two civilian aviators, Bernardo Duggan and Eduardo Olivera.

The aviators, who propose to begin their attempt on Argentine Independence Day, May 25, have already asked for fitaly to obtain a propeller of the Savoia type with which they will embark for New York about May 1.

FILM ROMANCES COME AND GO

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Los Angeles, April 16.—Years ago, when Harry Lauedon was on the vaudeville stage, his partner in "Johnny's New Car" was Rose Langdon, his wife and business manager. Then Harry made good in the movies, and the old-time vaudeville team disbanded for a more lucrative field.

While Harry was climbing up the ladder, Rose was staying at home, trying to be happy and not succeeding very well. They quarreled and Rose decided she, too, would have a fling at the movies and perhaps since Harry had taken the all the laurels need not belong to the male of the species.

To make a long story short, Mrs. Langdon went to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and persuaded her old friend, Tod Browning, to give her a chance. Yesterday I saw her on the set of "Road to Mandalay," all made up and ready to do her "bit," for it is just a bit.

She was eager not to berecognized as her husband had not yet been told of his wife's ambitions. Some of her friends say the quarrel is only temporary and just one of those things that happen in the best of regruiated families. Others say that this time it is final.

But we both hope. Perhaps her art will mean to her what her husband's does to him. He is today one of the best comedians on the screen. Don't say are in speaking of slapsticks! Yes I did and I mean it. for it is the most difficult of all screen work.

While I was on the Browning set at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot I had somewhat of a shock. I saw Lon Chaney with the eyesight of one eye entirely gone. I gasped and tried not to show my horror.

"A cataract?" said Mr. Browning.

I was told, while it smarts and is painful, it will not affect his sight providing he removes it within six hours.

Well, he is a braver man than I would be.

I saw Mae Murray tripping across the lot, hurrying for a conference with W. Christy Cabanne, who will direct her in "Altars of Desire," her next. Mae has just taken a new house in Santa Monica and threatens to have a housewarming one of these days. I heard from another source that Mae had made a girl in one of the beauty shops work for her by giving her a job as personal maid and giving the girl's two children a home.

Sounds to me as if she deserves honorable mention for that deed.

A frequent visitor at the Warner Studio is no less a person than Fidel La Barba, who seems not only interested in the movies but in Sydney Chaplin's new leading lady, Doris Hill. Miss Hill is playing the feminine lead in "The Better Ole," and Mr. La Barba spends a large part of every day watching Chuck Reisner direct Miss Hill, who is a pretty little brunette with a personality that should screen well.

Irene Rich is getting herself in readiness to begin work on "The Door Mat." I don't mean that she is going into the door mat business, or anything like that, but that is the title of her next picture, to go into production at Warner Brothers' Studio in a short time.

James Flood will direct her. Speaking of directors, I am reminded that Millard Webb hurried back from Palm Springs five weeks ago for a conference on his next picture, and this hasn't been decided on yet.

It seems to me there is no such a thing as speed in the movies. Decisions that would seem momentous in another business are treated in the most casual fashion. But I suppose it is important to get just the right director for the right job.

HUNDREDS SEE JEWELER SHOT AND ROBBED IN N. Y.

New York, April 16 (A.P.).—In a daylight holdup in full sight of hundreds of pedestrians on the lower East Side, four men shot Joseph Elyer, a jeweler, today as he left his Christie street store. They escaped with a brief case containing $25,000 worth of platinum settings. Elyer's condition was said at a hospital to be not serious.

FOURTH ESTATE ON STAGE

Boston's newspaper men are to turn actors April 29 in Jordan Hall when Fourth Estate Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will present minstralsy and follies.

There will be forty men in the first part of the show. The end men are "Big Brother" Bob Emery of the Edison Electric illuminating Company Station WBZI and his colleague, another popular radio announcer, Walter (Hap) Myers, Bill Nye of the Boston Herald, for several seasons a professional end man and "Dad" Center of the Boston Transcript.

Rehearsals have been under the direction of Willard H. Davis, Boston newspaperman and organist of Fourth Estate Lodge.

The Weber Quartet will be a feature as well as George Kelin of the Boston Herald who will do a specialty dance. Charles C. Palcoim, interlocuter, is master of Fourth Estate Lodge and affiliated with the Boston Transcript. The circle will include two past masters of Fourth Estate Lodge, James L. Robinson, proprietor of Robinson News Service, and Edmund F. Knight of the Boston Herald.

The rest of the circle will be made up of men occupied in various branches of the profession on the Boston daily newspapers from editor down to dancing copy boy and the printer's devil.

For the second part Al Richardson presents "Sugar Plum," a musical revue with Eddie Gough and a dancing chorus.

The music for the revue has been arranged by Pio Fraser, and will be played by an orchestra under the direction of Bert Lowe.

Illinois Tells the World

A Refreshing, Patriotic Verdict

With the emphasis of a huge majority for Frank L. Smith in the Republican primaries for Senator in Congress in which more than a MILLION VOTES were cast, Illinois tells the world that on the Western prairies the people want no link or alliance with hate-harboring, war-torn Europe.

In the State of Lincoln, Logan and Grant, the principles of George Washington are regarded as good enough and as good as ever.

The message from Illinois to the U. S. Senate is:

It is a refreshing, patriotic, inspiring VERDICT.

In addition to the victory for AMERICA FIRST is the reassurance that neither MONEY of "interest" or individual nor MACHINERY of political combinations can rule an American electorate, at least not in Middle West, if the people are thoroughly aroused and fully informed.

Our citizens are often indifferent, but they are seldom inaccurate in judgment once they move into action. Money and machinery are impotent once the tide of aroused public sentiment sets toward the polling places. So, not only was it a victory for America first, but for the ballot box on which our government rests.

Frank L. Smith is well equipped to ably represent Illinois, and we congratulate him, but vastly more important than the success of the person is the victory for the great principle which was the paramount issue, and no one realizes this more than the winning candidate, in our judgment.

Illinois sends a MESSAGE and starts a MAN to the U. S. Senate—a patriotic message and a man who, we believe, understands and represents the hopes and ambitions, the ideas and ideals of the men and women who live useful, honest lives in the State of Illinois.

Skull Like Shell of a Nut

It Is What Is Inside That Really Counts

When one great scientist, dying, gives his brain to another great scientist, you realize that it is only the material brain that is transferred in ownership, and you perhaps think what a wonderful thing it would be if he could have passed along the wisdom that a few hours ago was treasured up in that wrinkled gray matter.

Genius we cannot transfer. Knowledge is transferred every hour of the day in the printed record of great intellects.

No matter how wise a man may have been, or how eminent in his profession, there is more information on one shelf in the public library than any one man, working all his life on one subject, could accumulate by his own efforts.

There is not a single subject you can think of that has not been written about, and all the information about it collated in accessible form in books. Reading them you can make yourself the heir of all the wisdom in the world from the days of papyrus rolls and stone tablets of Egypt and Assyria down to the last theory of the most advanced student of the twentieth century.

Brains die, but knowledge lives, and knowledge is so cheap and so accessible that there is no excuse for ignorance.

The brains of more than a hundred eminent men have been weighed, examined and classified. Among these the men following the profession of exact sciences had the heaviest brains. The next were men of action in law, government and military affairs. Following them were philosophers and natural scientists.

Look at your child, and if the forehead is not prominent begin early to train him in thinking, in concentration and in memory, for these are powers that can in a measure be attained by training.

The skull when the child is born is almost soft. Some portions of it like that at the top and front, called the fontanelle, have no bony formation at all for some months after birth.

Do not bind or confine the head of a child in any way. Do not tie close bonnets on it nor bandage it. See that it does not lie for long periods resting its head on one side to the exclusion of the other.

You may not be able to make a Voltaire or a Beethoven or a Newton out of a plain John Smith, but by care you may help him in his mental growth by preventing outside conditions from interfering with inside development.

If your child has a finely shaped head rejoice. If it is just an ordinary head make up your mind to help as much as you can in making the brains that are inside of it as valuable and productive as possible.

How to Die Young

Neglect Your Sleep

Chicago students, to make scientific tests possible, not long ago remained awake voluntarily 115 hours. Although awake, they dreamed as though they were asleep. They only SEEMED awake.

Those students, at the end of their lives, will suffer because of the tests voluntarily endured. After two days without sleep, it was impossible for them to write legibly, and they were soon unable to distinguish individuals, and some lost control of their minds completely.

That should be a lesson for all young gentlemen who have heard that Napoleon could get along with four hours' sleep a day and try to imitate him.

If Napoleon had slept more regularly, he might have stayed awake, which he did not do, on the day of the Battle of Waterloo. And it might have been Wellington's "Waterloo" instead of being Napoleon's.

Eat too MUCH.
Believe and patronize the bootlegger.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE Palmers are trying to bring Ellie "to her senses." Ellie, it seems, hasn't been making use of her senses for the last few months. Ever since she got in with that crowd of fast young people where she works.

At first Pa and Ma Palmer didn't worry much. It was Ellie's first job —she just graduated from high school last June. And they thought the new freedom had gone to her head. Pretty soon she'd see how silly and vulgar and wrong it all was—all this drinking and smoking and these doubtful dinners at roadhouses, the extreme dresses, the conspicuous "make-up," the hard-boiled manner. Yes, pretty soon Ellie would turn against all that, for she hadn't been brought up that way. She'd been brought up to be a Nice Girl.

But, pretty soon Ellie DIDN'T turn against all that. In fact, she fell for it harder and harder! She discarded her blue serge suit and blossomed forth in a rose georgette that barely swept her knees. She laughed at sister Alice's unpowdered cheek, and daily her lashes grew heavier with mascara and her cheeks more vividly tangerine. A month ago Mother discovered a pack of cigarettes in her vanity case. And then—last week—there was that terrible scandal when Tony's place was raided and Ellie was pulled up, along with the rest of the party, to account for the booze on their table!

Of course, it was hushed up — but you know how it is. All the neighbors are talking and the Palmers are simply heart-broken. To think that Ellie should bring disgrace like this on the family, when they've always been so respectable!

Let Them Try

"But it doesn't seem a bit of use," wails Mother Palmer. "I've scolded and scolded her. I've prayed over her and cried until my eyes feel like burnt holes in a blanket. We've tried to shame her in every way we could and make her see what a wicked girl she's been. We've tried to think of some way to punish her —but it's hard to find ways of punishing a nineteen-year-old girl. And it's all no use. She just grows harder and more reckless all the time. She's openly threatening now to run away the first chance she gets. Isn't it awful, Elsie, after we've done the very best we could for her?"

"Yes, it's awful, poor dears. But you HAVEN'T done the very best you could for her. In fact, right at present, you're doing the very WORST you can for her.

All these blame and threats and reproaches and humiliations—what do they do to her? They tear her down. They cheapen her. They make her feel her own heartlessness —or, at least, that is what you hope they'll make her feel—utterly lost.

"Well, if I've got the name I might as well have the game," she retorts, and you think she is hard and wicked.

She isn't hard and wicked. She's only a hot-blooded, foolish, impulsive little girl who has burned her fingers. And now you're trying to make her feel that she's charred all over. She isn't fighting back because she's "wicked." She's fighting back because she is trying to save her own self-respect. It's probably self-preservation at work in her —not the devil, as you imagine.

Of course, if she fights long enough, and hates you madly enough, she'll probably become as pitiful a moral wreck as you think she is. But at present she isn't a moral wreck. She's only a blundering human who needs help whereby she may climb to her feet again.

The Foolish Part

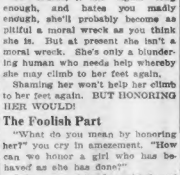
Only a part of her has misbehaved —the foolish part of her. But there's more to her than that foolish part. There's the clean, noble, fine part, too. There's the part that loves beauty and honor and wants to make much of itself. And that part of Ellie will save her if you give it a chance.



The foolish part of Ellie has cheapened her. It made her forget her better self. And you're trying to make her feel still cheaper by scolding and shaming her. You're siding with the foolish part of Ellie. You're hurting her so surely as it hurt her. That's not the way to save her.

The way to save Ellie is to BUILD UP HER PRIDE INSTEAD OF TEARING DOWN. In the long run, it's our pride in ourselves which saves us, never the tears and threats of the other fellow. Ellie's pride will save her if you give it a chance. Begin to tell her how fine and sensitive and sweet she is, instead of how coarse and callous. Help her to see how much richer life is for fastidious people who put a price on themselves than for fools who throw themselves away. Call up the aristocrat that is in her—appeal to the nobility. Make her proud of herself instead of ashamed of herself and you'll be giving her something to live for and strive for. That's the way to save Ellie. That's the way to save any human being.

THOUGH RICH, HE IS NOT A LOAFER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LINCOLN ELLSWORTH is said to be worth millions of dollars, to have a villa in Italy, a castle in Spain, an estate in New York, and plenty of means to do anything he wants.

He might loaf around in the clubs, smoke fifty-cent cigars, dress in purple and fine linen, and altogether enjoy himself chasing the girls.

Instead he joins expeditions to hunt the North Pole. He braves all manner of hardships and does all kinds of rough work in this connection.

After graduating as a student of civil engineering at Columbia University, he went out surveying for the Grand Trunk Pacific Trans-Continental Railroad in Canada.

Nothing daunted by these hardships he took a job as transit man on the first survey through the Yellowhead Pass in British Columbia, footing the entire two hundred miles of the way carrying instruments on his shoulders.

Living in a boxcar and bouncing around from place to place seemed to appeal to him better than enjoying a life of luxury.

Then he went to Alaska as assistant engineer with the Kongarock Mining Company, north of Nome.

Ellsworth is deeply interested in animal life. For two years he collected various specimens from the north of California to the Yukon boundary of wild mountain sheep.

He is not much of a sport and does not enjoy hunting, although he is said to have shot the last wild buffalo in the United States.

His father accumulated a vast fortune from a coal mine in Ohio and purchased the Villa Palmieri near Florence. He collected much art and other treasures, but his son was not satisfied to sit down and enjoy them. As is well-known, he was a member of the first expedition in which Captain Amundsen made his polar flight and was imprisoned twenty-five days in the ice of the northern seas. He was rescued just about when the party had given up hope.

Just why a man should pass by all the comforts of civilization and devote himself to a life of adventure is something that cannot be seen by some folks, but a nature like Ellsworth's finds its satisfaction in such pleasures.

PLAYING WITH FIRE? YOU NEED A JOLT

Is something or someone tempting you?

Are you playing with fire?

Are you indulging in something that you know to be wrong, but feel that you will never wholly lose your power to call a halt?

Thousands of others have had the same thought.

Gradually they kept doing the wrong, at each repetition they found it easier to do. After a time 'twas commonplace, but habit kept them going on and on until a most regrettable condition had come about.

If you want to learn just how much power your indiscretions have over you try to stop abruptly.

The result may startle you. In fact it would be well if it did startle you.

Not the Same Tree

Mussolini Is SELF-MADE

Ludendorff, product of the Kaiser, and Mussolini, of Italy, are as far apart as North and South Poles.

Ludendorff, a product of militarism, came up through a system to wear the Kaiser's spiked helmet, iron cross, dragging clanging sabre and other ornaments.

Mussolini is a man of the Italian people, a radical, in fact an ultra radical Socialist when the war broke out. He was so radical that he couldn't be promoted in the army in spite of his courageous fighting.

His experience in the war, the tendency toward chaos and revolution, that he thought he saw all over Europe when the war ended, changed Mussolini's line of thinking.

MUSSOLINI MADE HIMSELF RULER OF ITALY.

Ludendorff WAS made by the Kaiser as any other energetic healthy man might have been made.

Mussolini created his own position. Instead of being made by the King, it was he that established the King more firmly on his throne.

The man that makes HIMSELF is a real man. The man manufactured by a system, by kings or by financial plutocrats is an imitation man.
